SWEDISH PRINCE LATEST RUMOR-MONGER TARGET

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret danced with old faithful escort Dominic Elliot until 3 in the morning at the U.S. ambassador's home today while a new rumor—barely more than a whisper—paired her name with Prince Bertil of Sweden. The Princess soon turns 26.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman gave a weary "no comment" to inquiries on the Bertil report which appeared in some London newspapers today.

Cypriot Bomb Threat Doubles Guard at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (Reuters)—The guard at United Nations headquarters was doubled today after an anonymous telephone call that the "Cyprus liberation movement" planned to plant a bomb there. A man telephoned the secretariat that a bomb would be placed in the building this afternoon.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)—Four Cypriot gunmen shot and mortally wounded a British school teacher in the city of Limassol today in front of his horrified students.

The dying teacher, Thomas Milrea, pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot back but did not hit any of the gunmen.

The gunmen also shot and wounded a taxi driver before they escaped in broad daylight. Dozens of students and shoppers dived for cover as shots zipped through the busy downtown street in front of the gate way to the school.

Milrea was the fifth British civilian killed by the anti-British underground in 14 months of violence. Two of the others also were slain in Limassol.

The Cypriot "execution squad" started shooting as the taxi pulled to the curb in front of the school.

The wounded taxi driver managed to drive the teacher to a nearby police station. Milrea died en route from there to a hospital after gasping a few words to detectives.

Nomination Day

QUEBEC CITY (BUP)—Nominations close today for the June 20 general election. Premier Maurice Duplessis' National Union party and the Liberal opposition have entered candidates in all 93 ridings. The Labor Progressive (Communist) party also has entered a heavy slate.

TRAIL (CP)—City engineer George Sanders Tuesday warned a score of Trail residents to vacate their home on Groutage Avenue today.

He said the city could not raise board walks presently affording access to the Groutage Avenue homes.

Tuesday night the level of the Columbia River had risen within two inches of the board walks.

Sanders said the river level was certain to rise above the boardwalks and any further raising of the walks would make them hazardous.

Flood workers were hoping that the cooler weather would bring a predicted slow fall in the river levels, but the water was still inching up there.

A predicted new flood crest on the Kootenay River was held off today by cool overnight temperatures.

Forestry department officials working with 150 army engineers to strengthen dikes, said the river is being held in check.

Magistrate Guy Constable, chief of the Creston dike district, said Tuesday "quite heavy" showers could produce further trouble in the watershed of the Kootenay River.

Covent Garden Opera House Threatened by Rising Debt

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Opera House at Covent Garden, scene of great triumphs by Patti, Tetrazzini, Caruso and Melba, is in danger of closing its doors.

The illustrious home of the Sadler's Wells Ballet is losing money at the rate of £100,000 a year and now is £140,000 in the red.

Lord Waverley, chairman of the Opera House board of directors, told a press conference Tuesday that if Britons want opera they'll have to pay for it.

Lord Waverley said that if the government did not come to its aid soon, the Opera House would have to close.

He blamed steadily rising costs for Covent Garden's present predicament. Just the same, the budget falls "far below" opera houses in France, Italy and Germany, he said.

Peace Era Hailed By Bulganin

War Clouds Gone Says Soviet Chief

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia's Premier Bulganin today hailed an era of world peace with a Moscow radio statement explaining that Russia now is disarming because the threat of war has vanished.

"There is nowhere a possibility of war breaking out," the broadcast said.

Bulganin offered this as the explanation for Russia's recently announced intention to cut the Red army by 1,200,000 men without awaiting an international disarmament agreement.

"In Europe, Britain will not start a war, the French do not want it, the Germans cannot make it," he said.

"We hope that the Western powers will follow our example and do likewise. If clear indications of understanding are given and there is good will, the results will be positive."

NO PURPOSE

He recalled Russia's rejection of President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan to safeguard a disarmament agreement by means of "Soviet" air patrols over the United States and vice versa.

"We do not accept air inspection as a form of control because it is impossible to fly over territories as large as the Soviet Union and the United States—all over the world, in fact, since the United States have military bases everywhere."

SENATE HALTS DEBATE ON PIPELINE MEASURE

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Senate gave the pipeline bill its first reading at a morning sitting today but shelved debate on second reading—the important approval-in-principle stage—until this afternoon.

"There will be no deferring of debate in this House so far as I am concerned," Sen. W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Upper House, said in moving the first reading. The Senate rose until the afternoon to give its members a chance to study Trade Minister C. D. Howe's storm-tossed measure.

Canadians Win $800,000 in Irish

Two in Ontario, Montrealeer Win First Prizes in Sweep

By The Canadian Press
Canadian holders of Irish hospital sweepstakes tickets cashed in to the tune of a whopping $800,000 today on the nerve-tangled result of England's 177th Epsom Derby classic.

Three Canadians held tickets worth $140,000 each on the winner in a stirring photo-finish, the French-owned Lavandin.

They were D. Beaton of Toronto, John Moler of Weston, a Toronto suburb, and L. H. Fleming of Montreal.

An additional three hit the No. 2 jackpot in one of the year's richest payoff horse races. Tickets worth $56,000 were held on the runner-up, Montavala, by Colleen Martin, a Toronto office worker, who shared hers with her parents, S. Curtis of Edgar, Ont., and John "Miller" Parr of Moose Jaw, Sask.

FOUR GET $28,000
Four Canadians got the $28,000 third prize that went with Roister's finish in the gruelling 1½-mile race over Epsom's switchback course. They included Mrs. Irvin Weiner, 42-year-old mother of two and a part-time Vancouver saleswoman.

First, second and third-place winnings alone by Canadians totaled an even $700,000.

But 105 persons in Canada drew horses, and even those who wound up with horses that finished out of the money stood to collect $1,341 each. Canada's share of the 8,500 secondary prizes that range down to 10 pounds sterling ($28), will boost her overall share of the $5,896,000 in prizes to about $800,000.

Four Victoria residents each won $1,341 consolation prizes on horses which ran out of the money. One of them, Mrs. O. Cave, 2347 McBride, had a ticket on fourth-place Hornbeam. Had her horse made third place, she would have got $28,000.

The other $1,341 winners were: Mrs. A. H. Hamilton, 1150 Woodstock; G. H. Norrie, Irish Linen Shop, and George Levkulich, 1471 Hamilton.

A private ceremony by nine officers who served in the great landing will be performed at Vauxhall Bay later.

MEMBERS WEARILY DRIFT HOME AT DAWN
Pipeline Fury Ends in House Amid Good-Natured Needling

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons pipeline debate, stained with fury and rebellion throughout its three weeks, ended at 3:20 a.m. EDT today with mixed feelings. If anything, weariness predominated.

In the dying moments, as the 70th and final vote was being counted, the bitterness seemed momentarily, at least—to evaporate. Its absence was conspicuous.

There was still some needling. But it was good-natured now. And there was some personal warmth again.

When George Hees (PC-Toronto Broadview) and John B. Hamilton (PC-York West) rose to cast their final votes against the government's pipeline bill, Liberals who sit near them thumped their desks. Both members grinned.

PAPERS FLY
When the yeas and nays were called on two of the final four votes, Speaker Rene Beaudin found that the Conservative-CCF opposition had shouted their stand the louder. The Liberals had to rise and bring on the formal roll-call vote each time.

At this, Trade Minister Howe's bill's sponsor—grinned. Rodolphe Leduc (L-Gatineau) appeared to be asleep on one vote.

George Weaver (L-Churchill), in the next desk, shook him awake. Frank E. Lennard (PC-Wentworth) flung a sheaf of papers into the centre aisle. It landed in front of the desk of Minister Harris, government House leader.

House Adjourns Censure Debate

Dr. Lorne MacDougall, Vancouver, Victim of Fatal Seizure Today

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. John Lorne MacDougall, 57, Liberal member of Parliament for Vancouver Burrard, died suddenly today.

As a mark of respect, the Commons immediately adjourned its debate on Opposition Leader George Drew's motion of censure against Mr. Speaker Rene Beaudin.

Party associates said Dr. MacDougall succumbed in a washroom of Parliament's Centre Block, near his fifth-floor office, just after the Commons assembled for its sitting.

His death was believed due to a heart seizure.

Mr. MacDougall's wife was in the gallery of the House at the time. Friends brought her out.

The Vancouver member, first elected to the Commons in 1949, had complained of not feeling well during the last two days. He was present in the Commons for the last stages of the hectic pipeline debate until 3:20 a.m. today.

Mr. MacDougall was a dental surgeon graduate of the University of Toronto. He was forced to leave his practice due to disabilities suffered in being wounded three times during the First World War.

At one time he was chief organizer of the British Columbia Liberal Association and first ran for a federal seat in 1935 but was defeated. He was successful in the general election of 1949 and was re-elected at the general election of 1953.

His voice breaking, Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons of the "very tragic" death of "our esteemed and beloved colleague."

John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert), who was speaking in the censure debate at the time, said he knew Dr. MacDougall 40 years ago, in the 19th Battalion.

"I knew him through those years . . ." Mr. Diefenbaker said. He could go no further and sat down.

Then he finally managed to choke out: "I move the adjournment of the debate as suggested by the prime minister."

Mr. St. Laurent immediately seconded the motion.

Veteran parliamentary observers said they could recall no similar occurrence of the House breaking off proceedings on the death of a member.

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver Kingsway) said he had known Dr. MacDougall — "My good friend" — since 1935 when they had been opposed in a general election.

"We were political opponents but the very best of friends since that time and up to now."

Social Credit leader Solon Low said his party was shocked at the death.

"The strains and tensions of the past weeks have certainly taken a terrific toll," he said. "We are very, very sorry."

(Three Conservative MPs collapsed and required hospital treatment during the three weeks of the pipeline debate. Howard Green, J. M. Macdonnell and Dr. E. C. Trainor, Justice Minister Stuart Carson also, is in hospital, convalescing from an operation.)

Holland Here Thursday
OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Holland of New Zealand will arrive by air at Vancouver tonight to begin a two-week Canadian visit before the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London late this month. Mr. Holland will go to Victoria Thursday.

70 VOTES TAKEN IN LOAN DEBATE
OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 70 votes, possibly a record on a single piece of legislation, were needed in the Commons to bring about approval of the government's pipeline legislation.

The breakdown: Government motions to advance the legislation: 24.

Opposition motions to delay or change the proceedings: 14.

Procedural questions raised by the opposition: 5.

Appeals from rulings of the chair: 24.

Miscellaneous votes: 3.

Total: 70.

tossed papers at Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) when Mr. Knowles rose on the final vote. It was a comradely gesture.

"OBSTRUCTION TWINS"
They had been leaders in the procedural battle waged by the Conservative—CCF opposition against the Liberal and Social Credit members in the long pipeline fight. Earlier in the debate, at one of its less friendly stages, Elmore Philpott (L—Vancouver South) had described them as the "obstruction twins."

Many Liberals lingered to line up and file past the desks of Mr. Howe, Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Harris, shaking their hands, congratulating them.

Stevenson Jubilant Over California Win

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Primary returns from California established Adlai E. Stevenson today as the man to beat for the Democratic presidential nomination. They virtually knocked Sen. Estes Kefauver out of the race.

Jubilant Stevenson supporters acclaimed their candidate's showing in this final, crucial presidential primary of 1956, as proof that he can carry on a fighting campaign to win back the White House for the Democrats.

But the bruising campaign between Stevenson and Kefauver in the 1956 primaries has scarred Stevenson's hopes of winning the nomination that was handed to him on a platter four years ago. He still faces a struggle to win it this year.

Incomplete returns from Tuesday's California vote showed Stevenson polling over 60 per cent of the Democratic vote.

He also was maintaining a slim lead over President Eisenhower, who was unopposed in the Republican presidential primary. However, the Democrats have 800,000 more registered voters in California than the Republicans and there was no contest comparable to the Stevenson-Kefauver race to turn out the GOP vote.

Already the front-runner in delegate strength, Stevenson gained 68 more national convention votes by his winner-take-all victory in California. The single contest gave him about 10 per cent of the 686½ he needs to win the nomination.

Kefauver picked up 24 more convention votes Tuesday in South Dakota and Montana, where he was unopposed in Democratic presidential primaries. Montana delegates will be chosen later but they are bound by the primary vote.

From the outset of the primary campaigns, the California contest was viewed as the showdown between Stevenson and Kefauver. It became even more crucial after Kefauver handed the favored Stevenson an almost disastrous defeat in Minnesota in March.

Kefauver conceded defeat in California about midnight, vowing to continue his fight for the nomination. But while he still may figure as a possible vice-presidential nominee, his chances of winning the big prize are now cut almost to zero.

How They Stand

NANAIMO STUDENTS DISCIPLINED

NANAIMO—All but "one or two" of the 138 students suspended at Nanaimo High School for their part in demonstration against principal J. B. Leitch were at their classes today.

Printed forms to be signed by the students, and stating they would observe school regulations, had been sent to the parents of the students. They left their classes April 18 and refused to return unless granted a hearing by the school board.

The students were suspended Tuesday, and were told they could return to school only if they returned the forms properly signed.

Mightiest Amphibious Operation At Normandy 12 Years Ago Today

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A dozen years after the Normandy landing, the mightiest amphibious operation in history, many military men feel sure of one thing—mankind will never see another one like it. The spectacle of massed navies, speckled with hundreds upon hundreds of converging ships, they unleash thousands of attack troops, is probably a thing of the past. It is almost as outmoded as a clash between knights on horseback.

The amphibious operation is one of the oldest forms of war. It is also one of the most imaginative and difficult of manoeuvres to execute. It is always a titanic gamble, made perilous by hidden reefs and the whims of wind and weather.

When an amphibious operation succeeds, it often succeeds brilliantly. But when it fails, it is often an irrefragable disaster. The Normandy landing will perhaps go down in the textbooks as the classic example of a successful amphibious operation.

Just 12 years ago this morning, after being postponed 24 anxious hours because of bad weather, it happened. The English channel was speckled with hundreds upon hundreds of converging ships, carrying scores of thousands of battle-clad soldiers. The sky swarmed and thundered with planes that came and went—and came and went again—and fire flamed and blood flowed on the beaches.

No one who was part of that day and is alive now can ever forget it, the feeling of unity combined from the joint strivings of hundreds of thousands of men over weary months, all forged into one supreme purpose—to land and seize a few strips of sandy soil and the pastures beyond. There was a terror and exultation in being part of it.

The operation succeeded so well that 26 days later the Allied command had put ashore a million men, 566,648 tons of supplies and 171,532 vehicles. It had suffered 60,770 casualties—the attacker usually pays higher initially—and taken 41,000 prisoners, and the German doom began.

Today could such an operation succeed? Hardly. Assuming an enemy had the H-bomb, the massing of fleets to support a major landing would be suicidal. A few well-placed hell bombs would turn any massed navy into debris.

Further development of guided missiles with H-bomb warheads—one bomb hits, one city disappears—makes even the thought of another Normandy-landing-type operation seem quaint and old-fashioned and unnecessary.

For better or for worse, the art of warfare has progressed so fast that today the whole earth is a potential beachhead.

Stormy Pipeline Bill Moves on to Senate

(From Times News Services)

The government's gas pipeline legislation gained final Commons approval early today on the 70th vote of its stormy three-week passage.

A last-ditch opposition barrier—a procedural argument—was thrown up after closure had clamped off debate on the bill itself for the last time at 11.3 a.m. It delayed for nearly an hour the final step needed for passage. Then the barrier crumbled and with a succession of roll-call votes the bill was cleared through to the Senate.

The Commons, torn since May 14 over the most bitterly-contested issue in decades, adjourned at 3.30 a.m. after a marathon sitting of nearly 11 hours.

Fight Has Just Started—Drew

Opposition leader Drew fired the build the line to Winnipeg by Dec. 31. The fight for free trade of Parliament has just started.

It was a clear indication the bill's passage meant only a brief truce and not a peace treaty.

Finance Minister Harris said he hoped the Commons today would start to deal with an interim supply bill which would replenish the treasury's nearly-bare coffers. The opposition may block the step on grounds formal notice of the bill of order raised by the opposition as it tried to have the bill blocked or thrown out on technical grounds.

The government hopes the Senate will pass the pipeline bill no later than Thursday. The upper chamber suspended some of its rules Tuesday to permit passage in one day, if necessary.

Thursday is the government's deadline for enactment of the bill to lend up to $80,000,000 to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to build the Prairie section of its long-delayed $375,000,000 natural gas line from Alberta to Montreal. If the deadline is missed, Trans-Canada is free from its agreement to

The unprecedented total of 70 votes taken during the three-week fight is only an index of what happened in that tumultuous period.

They cover the four closure motions the government put through start to cut off determined opposition at each stage of passage. They also cover 24 appeals from rulings by the chair against repeated points of order raised by the opposition as it tried to have the bill blocked or thrown out on technical grounds.

Every ruling was sustained by the Liberal-Social Credit majority. Caucuses of the Progressive Conservative and government parties today may decide the issue of opposing the interim supply bill.

The last fiscal year ended last March 31. After that the House, at the request of the government, voted two months' interim supply—that is, enough money to carry on for April and May. Now the two months' supply has been exhausted.

Money Lack Could Create Crisis

Unless there is a vote by the Commons of the necessary money to pay the daily bills of government and salaries of civil servants, a crisis could develop.

If employees decided not to work unless they were paid much of the country's business would be affected.

If determined opposition obstruction develops on the supply bill, the government likely would be faced with the need to impose closure to get it passed. But the government, having used closure four times on the pipeline debate, might be unwilling to get the money that way and thus might be forced to go to the voters earlier than it wants to.

The government might also adjourn Parliament until later this year, obtaining money to operate through royal warrant. This device by which spending is authorized on the governor-general's responsibility also might be employed if Parliament was dissolved and an election called.

The present Parliament was elected Aug. 10, 1953, for a five-year term. Reports are that the government wants to call the election next year, following the practice of going to the people every four years.

Early today, after the pipeline bill was cleared out of the Commons, Opposition leader Drew asked what would be the house business for the afternoon sitting.

Finance Minister Harris, House leader, said so far as government business was concerned it would be interim supply.

Mr. Drew said that no notice had been given to clear the way for consideration of interim supply at today's sitting.

Mr. Harris made no reply. "Are you going to abolish the rules on that, too?" asked John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert).

There was no reply from the government.

STORM-TOSSED VOYAGE

500,000 in Sweden Wait to Cheer Queen

By TOM REEDY
STOCKHOLM (AP)—Stockholm police estimate that half a million Swedes will turn out Friday to welcome Britain's Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh when they arrive for a three-day state visit.

Security officers, concerned that Greek Cypriot rebels might attack the British royal family, found one lone Cypriot in Stockholm, and he turned out to be an aged bicycle repair man who says he hasn't any feeling one way or the other about the Cyprus issue. He told the police with a grin that he would "go underground" for the visit if it would make them happier.

The royal yacht Britannia, accompanied for the first time by a Canadian naval vessel, the destroyer escort St. Laurent, is due to dock Friday morning. The Queen's party will be rowed in the Vasaorden, King Gustav Adolf's royal barge, to the quay at his castle. The biggest policing job will be to keep the waterways clear in an area where everyone seems to own a boat.

All hotels and lodging houses already are booked solid for both the royal visit and the week of Olympic equestrian games which start June 10, with the Queen and the duke in attendance. Princess Margaret is reported to be flying from London to join them the next day on an unofficial visit.

Newspapers plan extra editions in keeping with a fever of enthusiasm which has already gripped the city. The papers have taken an informal approach, referring to the British visitors as "E and P" just as Russia's Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev were "B and K" to the British papers.

Decorating firms are splashing paint and coats-of-arms around. Shop windows have dragged out all available pictures of the Queen and the duke. Some even found pictures of the late King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra on their visit to Stockholm almost five decades ago.

The royal yacht Britannia, carrying Queen Elizabeth to Stockholm, passed Lasseo lightship in the northern Kattegat early this morning in heavy seas and winds of near gale force.

STORM RACKS ALBERTA, DOUSES FIRES

EDMONTON, Alta. (CP)—Seventy-mile-an-hour winds, accompanied by hail stones the size of eggs, ripped through Westlock in north-western Alberta late Tuesday. The winds pulled barns out of their foundations, wrecked garages and yanked trees out of the ground.

The same storm dumped an inch of rain across the province and eased Alberta's worst forest fire emergency in recent years.

Engine Rams Runaway Oil Cars

SHAUNAVON (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Railway freight engine rammied a string of runaway tank cars near this southwest Saskatchewan town late Tuesday, setting three of them ablaze. No one was injured.

Twenty tank cars, loaded with raw crude oil from the Dillard oil field seven miles west of here, were reported blown eastward during a storm Monday night and were standing in a hollow when struck by the freight.

The engine plowed into the cars on a downhill grade near a crossing, bursting open the last car. Flaming oil spread onto the tracks, setting fire to the grass along the right of way for more than a quarter-mile.

Flames also spread to the engine. The front end of the locomotive was badly mangled.

Shaunavon is 200 miles west of Regina.

Pipe on Schedule

BY DOUBTFUL METHODS THE Federal Government has pushed its doubtful pipeline scheme through the House of Commons. Unless the Senate intervenes, which is unlikely, Mr. Howe's deadline will be met without a day to spare; the contract with Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. will be closed; the pipe will be laid from Alberta to Winnipeg, weather permitting, by the end of the year.

To achieve this result the St. Laurent Government has been compelled to follow a repulsive procedure. It has invoked closure again and again and limited the debates of Parliament, contrary to all Liberal principles.

But the limitation was not as serious as the Opposition has made it appear. There would have been ample opportunity for the fullest discussion of the Government's policy if the Opposition had not used up most of the available time in a deliberate filibuster on points of procedure. The Opposition was not much interested in the pipeline; it was interested in damaging the Government. How far it has succeeded only the next election will show.

Meanwhile the advocates of the pipeline who have condemned the Government's method of closure are caught in an interesting paradox.

The Winnipeg Free Press, for example, the great Liberal paper of the prairies, has been foremost in demanding that the pipeline be built to Winnipeg, this year, but it attacks the Government's treatment of Parliament.

The Free Press, and other papers of the same mind, could not have it both ways. If the pipeline was to be started this year, closure was unavoidable when the Opposition was clearly determined to hold up the Government's legislation. It was useless to denounce the closure while demanding the pipe.

The Government was led into a parliamentary crisis by its decision to start construction immediately, without seeing the end of its policy. It does not know whether Trans-Canada Pipe Lines can repay its huge state loan by next April; whether the Federal Power Commission will allow the importation of Canadian gas into the United States, an essential feature of the scheme; or whether the Canadian treasury must foreclose the mortgage and take over the ownership of the whole pipeline.

All this haste, and the resulting closure on Parliament, result from the Government's belief that Canada must have a pipeline from Alberta to the St. Lawrence right away. Yet this necessity has never been demonstrated.

Winnipeg and the prairie region could get along quite satisfactorily without natural gas for a year or two, as they have done for generations.

In Ontario it is said that without gas a power famine will occur not long hence, but Mr. W. Ross Strike, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro, and Mr. W. A. Mamby, general manager, have denied that danger. They have said also that the Hydro will not switch from coal to gas in its steam-generating plants. Their statements seem to show that Ontario would suffer no damage if the pipeline scheme were delayed until all the points now in complete doubt were settled.

The Government's determination to sign an unsatisfactory contract with Trans-Canada, to risk public money in a huge loan, to take over the pipeline if necessary and to limit parliamentary debate all are difficult to understand.

The position of the Conservative Party is still more obscure. It opposes the Government's scheme; it blockades Parliament but it has never admitted—because it fears the political consequences—that its opposition would stall the pipeline for a year at least and probably for two.

The Conservative Party has been playing politics with gas and seems well satisfied with the result. It has avoided the responsibility for halting construction this year. It has stood as the defender of Parliament's rights. And though it has broken with the Conservative Government of Ontario, it evidently feels that it has hurt the St. Laurent Government more than it has hurt itself.

No one can foresee the effects of this extraordinary affair on the mind of the electorate. But it cannot have done the Government any good and probably has done the personal prestige of the Prime Minister considerable harm. Altogether the events of the last fortnight provide a depressing overture to the next national election.

Now It's 'Courtesy'

MR. BENNETT SHOWS LESS than his usual political adroitness when he elides the all-night sitting of the last provincial legislative session as a sample of Social Credit courtesy.

"There's no closure with us," says the premier. "We let 'em talk all night if they want. And to make sure they (the Opposition) have enough time to say what they want, the Government side keeps silent."

Mr. Bennett would have done well to stay silent, and to hope the public would forget that all-night sitting. It was one of the gaudier blots on the government's escutcheon.

The Opposition had made repeated pleas to the administration for a commission to investigate conditions which left the integrity of the government in doubt. The Government tried desperately to gag discussion of the Sommers case. It sought, unsuccessfully, to go beyond the principle of sub judice to stifle legitimate debate.

Confronted by failure on the latter point, the administration attempted its own filibuster to stave off proper discussion. Highways Minister Gagliardi wasted time with a flow of florid oratory praising the government and his highway policy. The Attorney-General rose to continue the stall, turning eventually to a recital of the Gordon Commission brief and sitting down abruptly after three shouts of "filibuster" from across the hall. Mr. Bennett himself took the baton in this attempted relay and was eventually laughed down.

Members of the Opposition had something to say, within the legal bounds by which they were circumscribed. The filibuster petered out. The Opposition made its point. The administration sat silent—not for reasons of courtesy but because it had no rebuttal to offer.

Now Premier Bennett, apparently hoping that public memory is shorter than it is, tries to convert the incident into a political trick. He may consider that fair game.

If it is game at all, it has been hanging too long.

The Speakers Top the Students

THIS IS GRADUATION TIME. Each June our young people go out into the world, clutching their hot little diplomas in their hands, and reeling slightly from the traumatic effects of what might be called the graduation-speech syndrome. Nowhere in Canada, perhaps, did this virus infiltrate more effectively than it did the other night at North Saanich high school. Fifteen students were graduated. In their honor, sixteen speeches were made, by various school trustees, officials, PTA workers and (who let him in?) an RCMP corporal.

At last we're beginning to understand why the youngsters plead for all-night graduation parties. It's a wonder they come home at all.

Good Road, Dry Day and Death

PERIODICALLY EXPERTS ANALYZE highway accidents and disclose important information on factors involved in them.

The Travelers Insurance Company has recently completed such a survey of 1955 mishaps in the U.S.

It shows that 84.7 per cent of the fatal and 81.3 of the nonfatal accidents occurred in dry weather, 78.6 and 72.5 per cent respectively on dry roads. Cars driven on straightaways accounted for 78.4 per cent of persons killed and 64.6 per cent of those injured.

Mechanical defects were negligible factors in these accidents, 96.3 per cent of cars involved in fatalities and 97.3 in nonfatal accidents apparently being in good condition. Moreover, 97 per cent of the drivers were experienced, having operated cars for a year or more.

From this and other data it is deduced that the person responsible for the heavy toll is the passenger-car driver who probably exceeds the speed limit, possibly drives on the wrong side of the road and more than likely is a person under 25—a group whose record, had at present, seems to be growing worse.

The figures cited above relate specifically to the United States. It is reasonable to assume that they reflect similar factors in Canada.

The picture is not reassuring. It becomes more discouraging as improved highways permit more people to reach high speeds in cars of huge horsepower without a balancing amount of horse sense in the head of the driver.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

A FRIEND of mine turned up for dinner at my house bearing a new can opener. Not as a gift for me, and not because she expected the meal to be served from unopened tins, but just because she wanted me to read the name of the can opener. . . . She knew I wouldn't believe the name if she told it to me. I had to see it for myself. You, however, must accept my word for it that this can opener made in Germany, bears the astonishing name of Pathos Liberal. Not Pathetic Liberal or Liberal Pathos . . . just Pathos Liberal.

Brock

I haven't any useful guesses about the significance of the name. If it is political, which market is it made for? The British Liberal Party fell on pathetic days, but what has a can opener got to do with it? In the bright lexicon of politics there's no such word as can opener. Maybe the reference is culinary about the pathos of being too liberal with tinned foods.

INCIDENTALLY, while I groan at the flavor of some tinned foods and the price of others, I am not the enemy of the tin that some eaters set themselves up to be. I think they make their sneers a little too sweeping. I even believe (though I'm a little ashamed to admit it publicly) that some foods actually improve in tins . . . certain fruits, for example. Very ordinary plums can taste quite good if you leave them in a tin for half a year.

Anyhow, I refuse to believe that a liberal or Liberal, small L or big L, becomes very cutting by indulging in too much pathos and sentiment. For really cutting remarks, give me a cynical old reactionary every time. Though mind you, there are certain types of pathos which can make you flip your lid without having to cut the lid at all.

SNAGS

THE other day I had a bill from a creditor of mine. To it there was pinned a note from his secretary. In pen-and-ink, not typed, so as to look more confidential, I suppose. She said, "Dear Mr. Brock, I'm sorry to be presenting this bill such a time after the work was done. Being something I had to take time to work out, it continually landed in what I call my 'snag' or problem file."

Well, that's the sort of bill I like to get, presented after considerable soul-searching. Most of my creditors do not maintain a Snag File at all . . . you can tell that at a glance. If they don't know what to charge, they allow themselves the benefit of that doubt. They just think of a number, double it, and take away the quails they first thought of. As for their secretaries, these young women are almost superstitious about their own infallibility.

Furore of Politics

History (and Hansard) will record that the furore created over the trans-Canada pipeline issue in Parliament was designed as a political manoeuvre to reach press headlines and discredit a most important project in terms of employment, international good will and Canadian enterprise.

Our general of the shining armour, G. P. Pearkes, MP, risked some tarnish when, "begging the question," he contributed headline questions on quite different varying and irrelevant subjects, pointing these at cabinet ministers and ending with the ridiculous comparison of the sale of Canada's water resources likening this to the export of a commodity such as natural gas.

Conservatives, "progressive" and otherwise, have always advocated export of commodities to benefit the exchequer and have even gone so far as to monopolize the business.

The Secords haven't a leg to stand on as regards the pipeline issue. It's as simple as this—they dare not antagonize Alberta or risk offending those territories they hope politically to annex.

The opposition of the CCFers is more difficult to comprehend for they have always advocated progress and expansion to serve Canadians.

Let it be stated proudly that the Federal Liberal government are carrying out with consistency the expansion and building of this country as a responsible nation in terms of employment, development and international good will. KATHLEEN M. WORTHINGTON-LAKE, 851 Maddison St.

On to Jamaica

Major-General Pearkes appears to have gone out on a limb when, in the pipeline debates, he made these statements:

"There is no immediate need in Eastern Canada for gas. The only reason for the rush appeared to be that certain people connected with Alberta want to reap the benefits of gas distribution during their lifetime." — And why not? He said: "It would be better to store Alberta gas in the ground and leave it for future generations." The outmoded governments had done that for a long time!

And again: "It might also be better to move industries from Eastern Canada to the west than enter into the proposed arrangement."

Is General Pearkes aware that our coal imports last year, reached the staggering figure of 19,490,013 tons, and that in 1953 with the largest coal reserves in the world, we imported 60 per cent of our total coal consumption — nearly all from the U.S.A. — and our mines closing down?

So the government policy was to store it in the ground and buy from the Americans. Also that our industrial potential in the east is being retarded by the lack of cheaper fuel, resulting in us having to buy many products from the Americans that we ourselves should produce. Is he also aware that a major industry in Victoria is moving to Vancouver to reduce freight costs, and has also entered the Alberta field for obvious reasons?

It would appear that the policies suggested by the Member for Esquimalt-Saanich belong to the nineteenth century and have no place in our new economy as advocated by Social Credit for the interchange of primary products-between provinces and nations.

If General Pearkes would take a look at Newfoundland, another coming industrial giant under a new democracy, he might find that the "store it in the ground" policy he suggests for Alberta gas has been in effect in Newfoundland for centuries, latterly including 15 years of commission government, and 7 years of Liberal reign.

According to a recent press report from St. John's, the premier's farm has the largest cleared acreage — about 400 acres — in Newfoundland, which covers an area of 155,364 square miles, while the natives of that province have existed at a starvation level with an income of one-third the national average.

Yet, some intellectual die-hards would hinder the entry of American risk capital to our economy for the development of our natural resources! — And leave Victoria for the birds; while the Jamaican government is proposing a seven-year "tax moratorium" to U.S. industry coming to that island, and the American government will repeal the 10 per cent travel tax to the Caribbean area, where 93 per cent of the tourists to Jamaica are Americans and Canadians, according to tourist officials. . . . That may be our eleventh Secord province!

Rewrite

Soviet historians surely have their work cut out for them. They have been ordered to rewrite the history of Soviet Russia, and do it in a hurry.

Stalin is to be cut down to the size Khrushchev thinks about right. Stalin's enemies are to get posthumous eulogies. Stalin's old friends are to lose their halo — except in the case of Stalin's old companions who now happen to be in charge of things in Moscow, including Khrushchev and Bulganin.

All Soviet "big shots" of the past 30 years are to be reappraised, new textbooks, new histories in millions of copies are being called for by the Kremlin. It's up to the Soviet historians to get in there and pitch.

History has a way of repeating itself and Russian history will continue to be "rewritten" so long as the individual or collective despotic system continues.

Let us hope that the people of Russia and the satellites who constitute 96 per cent of the population will reasonably soon be able to remove the yoke from their necks.

FRANK H. PARTRIDGE.

Burns and the Revolution

So far the pride of old Scotland has not risen to denounce the visit of high Russian office holders to the land and sacred memory of Robert Burns. They had no doubt found pleasure in reading his delightful rhymes and possibly of considering a few centuries of the history of the British constitution.

No American should remain innocent of such a theme for the reason that ideas of good or evil are still in conflict and need airing. The seventeenth century in the British Isles was a vital period for humanity and for the world for all time. It is needless to disguise the temper of all classes and of all the political or religious parties struggling for wealth and social well-being in those days. There was a fierce opposition to any sort of foreign domination coming from the European continent with its certain military expense and abuses. That evil was not entirely avoided.

The astonishing rise of a new Russia may have been somewhat inspired by study of Scottish and United Kingdom history. At any rate the Russian people appear unlikely to suffer as did the British, from furious kings and corrupting officials. Good government in any land is, of course, not exactly easy.

A Lake for a Memorial

THE great new lake created as a reservoir for Kitimat power by the Kenny Dam has many times been hailed as a monument. It has been called a monument to vision, a monument to engineering ability, a monument to industrial progress.

But it is also a monument to the memory of a man—a memorial to the late Frederick William Knewstubb, one of the first engineers to realize the power potentials of the Nechako River and its adjacent lakes, and the pioneer who did much to make today's engineering triumph come true.

Tribute to a Dream

In recognition of the work he did, and of his many other admirable qualities, the Canadian Board on Geographical Names has designated the new body of water in central British Columbia, Knewstubb Lake. As such it will appear on all future maps, a lasting tribute to a man's far-reaching dream.

Mr. Knewstubb, who died in December, 1937, was for many years the chief hydraulic engineer of the Water Rights Branch, B.C. Department of Lands and Forests.

In an article in Harper's Magazine three years ago, U.S. Senator Richard L. Neuberger described the birth of the great concept that was ultimately to lead to the vast development of the Kenny Dam, the Kemano power plant and the aluminum city of Kitimat.

"In 1928," wrote Neuberger, "Knewstubb, then 54 years old and partially deafened from a wound in the First World War, looked up from his maps in the Water Rights office at Victoria and told his superiors he had discovered one of the great hydro-electric power sites of North America."

"His case was so convincing that a year later he led a small expedition through evergreen forests to five majestic British Columbia lakes—Tahta, Ootisa, Eutsuk, Tetachuk and Whitesail.

Enthusiastic, Untiring

"These lakes were linked by creeks and underground outlets and they pooled their flow into the Nechako River which coursed 288 miles eastward to join the Fraser at the sawmill town of Prince George."

Mr. Knewstubb was well aware that from where he camped at Tahta Lake it was only 10 miles to Gardner Canal and sea level. Water which could be brought to that point would have a 2,580-foot drop that could be harnessed for a vast power project.

The engineering problem lay in getting the river's water westward to the sea, for its natural flow was eastward.

But Mr. Knewstubb saw the possibilities. An earthen dam in a strategic canyon of the Nechako, drainage of the watershed to a point above Kemano where it could be poured into downward-plunging tunnels—these were the starting ideas which he presented to Victoria, with the prediction that they would produce the cheapest power per kilowatt on the continent.

But Mr. Knewstubb was ahead of his time. Transportation of electric current had not yet been perfected and power losses over distances greater than 300 miles were too great for economic transfer. Vancouver lay more than 400 miles from Tahta Lake, and there was no population adjacent to the resources to warrant development.

The depression soon came, to be followed by the Second World War, and the hydro-electric plan remained in a desk drawer. But by 1948 the Aluminum Company of Canada was ready to exploit the opportunity. Company surveys followed in Mr. Knewstubb's footsteps, verified his calculations, and the massive Kitimat project eventually became a reality.

But Mr. Knewstubb's activities were by no means confined to this enterprise. He was known throughout British Columbia for his work in assessing water resources, and he made some of the earliest surveys of the Butte Lake and other island areas.

Potential Head

One who knew Mr. Knewstubb well, as colleague and friend, has written: "His visits to camp were always looked forward to, and he never hesitated to impart his great knowledge of hydraulics to his field engineers. His enthusiasm and untiring energy about the great possibilities of the . . . project seemed to have no limit."

This was the man whose name now honors the lake he dreamed of but which he was never to see. That name now goes into the records as a fitting recognition of his vision and his achievement. —B.A.T.

PROTECTIVE

Once I was fool enough to believe my wife married me for love. I fondly believed she admired the fair-haired, blue-eyed young Able Seaman! But the dream was shattered long ago and I'm sure she married me thinking "This poor half-wit will get run over, or fall into the Thames and drown unless someone takes pity on him, and as no one appears to want to take the risk I'd better take the job on myself," which she did. And sometimes I think she made a good job of it, but other times, when I get pushed out into the cold for the sake of the pets, and the orphans and the freaks, I begin to wonder.

Gamble on Film Rights

LONDON—Strictly personal. . . . The moral of this story is that it seems a bird in the hand is not worth two in the bush.

When I returned to the house the other day my wife came rushing to me to say that a film company was eager to read "Follow a Shadow," the first of two novels I have coming out in the next few months. It was no fly-by-night company. They were the people who had made "The Kidnappers" and other successful films.

Reyburn

I sent them a proof copy. Several days elapsed, then they asked me to go in and see them. They gave me some glowing praise and said they wanted to buy the film rights of the book. It will have to be an Anglo-American production, they said.

We will probably go after Gregory Peck to play the U.S. ship's captain in it. We'll have to buy an old ship and sink it in shallow water off the coast for the wreck scenes. We'd like you to write the script and of course we'll put you on salary for that.

Exciting stuff, sitting in a film company office and hearing all that. But when they said "Let's get down to price" I had to parrot what my agent had said. "The book isn't out yet," I told them. "I have no bargaining power. If I sell it to you and then have the luck for it to be a best-seller I might miss out on higher bids because I've already sold it to you."

Don't worry about that, they said. We'll pay you on a sliding scale. So much down,

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Self-Limiting Diseases

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Since I have protested against the folly of going to ignorant and often criminal quacks who have had no training in medicine, I have received many letters from people who either have been angered or have said sadly, "We thought you were a fine kindly man; how could you attack men who say they have cured thousands of people with cancer?" Several persons said that first they had been examined thoroughly by eminent physicians in a big university clinic. When these doctors failed to find anything wrong, the patient went to a quack who promptly, with no examination, diagnosed a cancer. He gave some medicine, and the person soon was well. Naturally, my correspondent felt that the unlearned quack must have had some skill that the highly-trained physicians at the university lacked.

Dr. Alvarez

I understand such reasoning, and I realize how almost helpless it is for me, or anyone, to try to answer it successfully. What most lay persons do not know is that a large number of diseases are what we physicians call "self-limited." Like the chicken-pox, they tend sooner or later to clear up without any treatment. If it were not for the tremendous power of the body to heal itself and conquer infections, we physicians would have a hard time of it. Many a time, as a patient of mine has recovered, I have wondered if that wonderful statement of the father of modern surgery, Ambrose Pare, who lived some 400 years ago. He used to say, "I dressed the soldier's wound, and God healed it."

FACT PHYSICIANS FORGET

Another fact that many—even of us physicians—forget is that many a chronic disease, such as arthritis, keeps flaring up and calming down at intervals throughout a lifetime. Most of these flare-ups, if left untreated, will end by themselves. Naturally, the man who happens to be giving treatment at the time things quiet down gets credit for a cure.

Every week good, kindly people write to tell me of a wonderful cure for arthritis that they have heard of. They say it cured them or perhaps a friend. Why am I not much interested in these communications? Because, all my life since I was seven years of age, I have had recurrent spells of pain and stiffness in my joints, sometimes so bad that I have had to limp, or I have been almost unable to more if it's a British best-seller, more if it's a U.S. best-seller. The film rights of the current play "The Reluctant Debutante" were sold that way—a sliding-scale based on how successful it is in London and on Broadway. That sounded fine. I couldn't miss. They would insure me against bigger bids after publication.

Work out with your publisher, they said, what sort of sliding scale you want and then we'll finalize it.

When I got out of the office (walking several feet off the ground) I hastened to a phone to call my wife, as one does when news is too good to wait the delay of getting home. She was thrilled and when I did get home the youngsters were agog. Young Robin had already cast the leading parts with her movie idols, Diana Dors and Robert Mitchum (we'll have to cure her of that), but Mac had reservations.

"I wish they'd bought your Dieppe book instead," he said. "It's all fighting. But this one's got love stuff in it. When I take the boys from school they're not going to like it."

But next day when I phoned my agent he shared little of my enthusiasm. "They'll pay three to five thousand dollars," he said. "which is nice to have. . . . Nice to have! It's more than nice to have, it's well nigh a necessity."

No, he said, if it's worth that to them, it's worth a lot more to one of the big companies like Paramount or M-G-M. We'll turn them down and wait."

So . . . we wait.

I had an ironic dream last night, involving me in a wheelchair stroking my beard and waiting, waiting.

Potted Fuchsias Best Elevated

Fuchsias in pots are a delightful decoration for an elevated location at or just above eye level. The pendant blooms may then be admired in all the glory of exquisite color harmonies.

Hilda

There are possibly several reasons why we do not often see large specimen plants of fuchsia thus displayed, and all of them are cultural. Once their requirements are known, handsome plants are not difficult to grow.

Fuchsias are rapid growers, and the plants need to be shifted into larger pots always just before the white roots form a mat around the soil ball in the pot.

Only by removing the plant from the pot for inspection can the gardener know the exact time the job should be done.

The soil mixture should be rich in humus with a little coarse sand added. Drainage in the bottom of the pot must be perfect, since the plants require watering two or three times each day when once they are in the large blooming size pot.

To obtain a shapely plant, pinching out the growing tips should be practised every two weeks or so in the early stages. Thus a many branched, bushy plant is formed which will produce many blooms.

Partial shade is enjoyed by fuchsias since bleaching of the colors will follow a spell of direct hot sunshine.

Overwatering and under-watering will both cause bud drop, so keep a watchful eye on the top soil of the pot to avoid these conditions.

GOLDSTREAM WAITING

Loss of Tourists Feared by Delay

By PETE LOUDON

A delayed decision by provincial lands and forests department on whether Goldstream Park will be taken over from city ownership and developed as a provincial park may seriously affect tourism here this year.

All over the province there are reports this week of campers being turned away because of a lack of park facilities.

Forestry department officials reported today hundreds are being turned away each week-end from sites, including Vancouver Island's biggest development at Miracle Beach.

On Victoria Day weekend, 1,700 camping parties were refused admittance to Delta Grove camp at Cultus Lake, near Chilliwack.

MAY LOSE OWN FOLK

The trend to outdoor camping has brought thousands of medium-income tourists into areas where camp facilities are provided. But if B.C. can't keep up with the demand, it is logical to expect not only U.S. campers keep to their own roads but many from this province will head south of the border.

As early as a month ago a camp ranger at Little Qualicum Falls camp reported Victorians "take over" there every week-end. Constant use is made also of the camp at Macdonald Park, near Sidney. In the latter camp, many Victorians pause for picnics.

Their presence at the camp tables has meant campers who might be expected to stay several days have kept on going. It is for that reason most of the provincial campsites have separate areas for campers and for picnickers.

It is not too late in the season for Goldstream to be prepared and opened to campers. All of the necessary natural surroundings are there in quantity—fresh water, shade, woodland trails, swimming facilities and good fishing in close proximity. All parks so far developed provide a level space for a tent, toilets (some with running water), a stone and mortar fire place and table and benches hewn from whatever timber must be cleared for roads.

It is safe to assume two men could make one camp site in one day. One parks crew with a bulldozer could work miracles.

At least 300 people could be accommodated on Goldstream flats, campers who could easily take advantage of the facilities Victoria offers tourists and tourists so highly in distant places. Victoria council offered the park to the province last fall and since then Mayor Percy Scourah has made repeated overtures to the minister.

U.S. Jet Hits Car on Road, Kills Two

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—An air force jet fighter lost power on takeoff, hopped a fence and crashed broadside into a moving car Tuesday night, killing a 38-year-old woman and her five-year-old daughter.

The car, in which five persons were riding, burst into flames after the Scorpion jet smashed into it.

Killed in the crash were Mrs. Thelma R. Usher, 38, and her daughter, Rita, 3, of Minneapolis.

My new husband's father had arranged a wedding breakfast at the Grosvenor Hotel. Then Ernest and I, with Hughes at the wheel, roared off in a dashing new yellow Lagonda for the Channel ferry, France and Spain.

Ours was what might be called an Elton Glyn honeymoon—three joyous weeks.

I had realized, of course, that Ernest was a man of wider reading than most of my friends, but in the course of our honeymoon I discovered, to my pleasure, that he was highly cultivated and a many-sided man. He spoke French fluently. He knew a lot about French history and possessed more than a tourist's acquaintance with art and architecture.

I was very happy and, for the moment, felt a security that I had never really experienced since early childhood.

On returning to London, Ernest searched for a house. Ernest's sister, Maud Kerr-Smiley, came to my assistance, and with her help I finally found one at 12 Upper Berkeley Street, not far from Marble Arch. We rented it for a year, furnished, from Lady Chesham.

Stone steps led from the pavement to a green door fitted with a brass knocker. The dining room, with walls of pale striped wood, was on the first floor.

From the entryway a flight of stairs shot straight up to a large L-shaped drawing room, painted Georgian green. My bedroom was on the third floor, a sunny room looking out upon the street.

There was an enormous bed, with a fine brocade headboard; the entire effect spoke of a completely feminine woman. Adjoining the bedroom was a bathroom, with a commodious tub, and a smaller room Ernest used as a dressing room.

After my years as a wandering navy wife my new London house seemed almost a palace.

I had a butler, a cook, a housemaid, and a chauffeur. Compared to what I had known since I had left my grandmother's home, this was luxury.

I knew scarcely a soul in London, and I approached the business of making a new life for myself with trepidation. Ernest's sister was an understanding woman. She was eager to fit her long-absent brother and her new American sister-in-law into her secure, well-ordered, entirely British world.

Her daughter, Betty, was a debutante, and I was invited to the parties given for her. In addition, Maud gave small luncheons and bridge parties in order to introduce me to her own circle of friends.

Nevertheless I had the feeling, at times, of being a somewhat awkward American relation who had turned up unexpectedly. In consequence of a family misfortune, and to whom the English connections were expected to be kindly and understanding. Moreover, it was difficult for me to adjust myself to British ways.

Prince of Wales, or had had even the most passing encounter with members of his family. I had formed a strong impression, from the gossip rattling across the bridge tables, that he was a gay blade; that his brother, Prince George, was in hot water for one thing or another; and that the King was rather strict with his sons.

Prince's First Love

Indeed, and it is strange to have it come back to mind after so many years, one of Maud Kerr-Smiley's favorite stories about the British royal family was that, at a ball she gave in her house in Belgrave Square, towards the end of the First World War, the young Prince of Wales, then a soldier prince on leave, had met a beautiful young woman who became his first true love.

The gloom of London in the first winter of my married life there was deepened by a sad circumstance. King George V was seriously ill; he had been stricken by a streptococcus infection and was fighting for sion. All England seemed to be hanging on the doctors' bulletins; my friends talked of nothing else.

On a rainy afternoon, as I was driving past St. James' Palace on the way to pick up Ernest at his office, I saw the scarlet coated sentries at the gate suddenly stiffen to attention and present arms. A black motor emerged into St. James Street.

As it passed my car I caught a fleeting glimpse through the side window of a delicate boyish face staring straight ahead, the whole expression suggesting the gravity of a deep inward concern.

Hughes turned around, to say in awed tones, "Ma'am, that was the Prince of Wales."

I began by not liking London at all. It seemed to me the most unfriendly community I had ever known.

In time, as my knowledge deepened, I was to change my first emotional impression. Like a weathered rock, the character of London partakes of the climate that envelops it. Beneath the unpromising exterior lies the warmth of a banked fire.

I was some time learning this fact, and consequently spent many a miserable hour wondering what would become of me.

My second husband was as different from my first as day from night. There was no trace of the skylark in Ernest Simpson. He was regular in his habits, with a temperament as steady and dependable as the trade winds. Because he worked hard and seriously he disliked staying out late at night.

Thus Ernest and I took up in London what I am tempted to call, despite the first piercing thrusts of loneliness, the good life—a normal married life, comfortable in its unjarring repetition, untroubled by the

SCOUT ACTIVITIES

THIRD VICTORIA PACK: The meeting with the cubs and their dads Tuesday evening was a lot of fun. Games and stunts were played. The evening finished with a campfire and a mug-up. Gordon Woolridge, chairman of the group, thanked the fathers for attending. Akela Winnie Bennett was in charge of the event. A number of the pack will go to Parksville over the weekend to attend a rally.

The group is holding a family picnic at Pat Bay on June 17 at which all cubs, scouts, rovers and their parents and families are invited. Transportation will be provided, leaving headquarters at 10.15 a.m.

DUNCAN-CHEMAMUS DISTRICT: Twelve scouts from three district troops attended a successful, though damp, bronze arrowhead training course on the Kitson property, Quamichan Lake, last weekend.

A high-speed succession of sessions and games kept the scouts on the run for the entire period, but all agreed it was well worthwhile.

Those attending were Grant Douglas, David Thomas, Arthur Stern, Gerry Gamma, Glen Campbell, Peter Gratten, Dick McEwan, Stewart Qualley, Erling Jorgensen, Peter Calverly, Pat Phillips and Dick Pauling. The camp was run by district commissioner A. MacInnes assisted by W. Powell, Jim Blain, provincial field commissioner, visited the camp.

Pilot Relives Escape In Truth Serum Trance

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A test pilot has virtually relived in a drug-induced trance his escape from a supersonic jet fighter, the Los Angeles Times says. Herman (Fish) Salmon, chief test pilot for Lockheed, underwent a "truth serum" experiment in an effort to develop all facts in connection with the tense, crowded moments prior to his bailing out last year from an F-104 Starfighter. The pilot, given sodium pentothal—the so-called "truth serum"—lay on a couch in a darkened room and recounted his experience. Tape recorders were used by his questioners.

KEEP 100 MILES OF GAS IN CAR

CD Booklet Will Tell How, When to Get Out of Town

By PETE LOUDON

A 12-page handbook outlining evacuation procedure for Victoria and district householders is under final study by the Greater Victoria Civil Defence Control Board today.

The handbook makes specific suggestions on what to do if and when the bombs fall.

Preliminary preparations recommended include the stocking of 48 hours food for the entire family, together with an easily-accessible survival kit of first aid materials, water in proper container, matches, flashlights (extra batteries), candles, axe, shovel, hammer, twine etc.

The booklet also strongly suggests that gas for 100 miles travel should be kept in the car at all times.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

The handbook is entitled "Interim Voluntary Survival Plan" and is the work of Roger Peachey, CD co-ordinator.

Cover-to-cover reading is recommended, but it's not a must. One can skip the first two pages, and get right down to cases on page three where the warning signals are defined.

Here is what everybody should know:

ON RADIO

The yellow signal, meaning enemy attack is possible, will be given by spoken word over radio stations, and by a five-minute steady siren blast. It means target areas should evacuate and support areas mobilize.

Signal red, meaning enemy attack is imminent, will be given by spoken word over radio and by a three-minute wailing siren, rising and falling in intensity. It means "take cover in best shelter available."

Signal white, meaning danger of enemy attack is passed, will be given by spoken word on radio and by announcement by wardens. Sirens are not sounded for all clear due to possible danger of lingering radiation in some areas.

On receiving yellow warning, the citizen should go home immediately, by car, bus or afoot.

ROGER PEACHEY... compiled handbook

Normal routes should be followed except that Government Street is for southbound traffic only.

Douglas will take northbound traffic only, Blanshard southbound, Quadra northbound, Fort Eastbound and Pandora westbound.

ASSEMBLY POINTS

Yates is to be reserved for pedestrian assembly points and buses will pick up at the south side, 700 block, Yates for James Bay, Beacon Hill and Fairfield areas.

South side, 800 block, Yates buses will pick up for Oak Bay, Fort, Willows, Uplands, Cadboro Bay areas, Yates, between Douglas and Blanshard, presumably north side (this is not stipulated), pedestrians will line up for Quadra and Cook Street areas.

The same pickup area is designated for those wishing to go to Victoria West, Esquimalt, Gorge and Burnside. The north side of 800 block, Yates, is reserved for residents of Douglas Street, Carey Road areas. Residents of the Fernwood-Cedar Hill-Sheilbourne areas will be picked up at the centre of the area between Blanshard and Vancouver Streets, which is a two-block area partly reserved for the aforesaid Douglas Street-Carey Road areas and the Oak Bay, Fort Street, Willows, Uplands and Cadboro residents.

On yellow warning, school children will go home by normal routes. When the family is alerted, a map to be provided in the booklet will designate escape routes to temporary designations, presuming a car is available. The public is warned to prepare to live on its own resources for at least the first 48 hours.

Previous arrangements should be made if there is room in the family car to assist neighbors without means of transportation.

Red warning means take cover. The public in the downtown area should seek basement shelter. The same applies in residential areas. All transport is to stop. Avoid panic, walk, don't run.

Attack without warning would leave the public with little to do but fall flat and cover heads as much as possible. Take shelter where possible after first burst.

Strategic warning may come days or weeks before any hostilities in which case evacuation of all non-essential persons should be carried out on a voluntary basis.

Before leaving home, residents should fill receptacles with water, then turn off supply of water, gas, oil, electricity. Windows and doors are to be locked and all fires extinguished.

Blankets, warm clothing, food, should be packed with survival kit.

SHELTERS

The last three pages of the booklet tell how to construct a basement shelter in advance and give facts concerning radiation. There are also directions for care of animals and poultry.

Bonner Request Sparks Mysterious Police Sortie

(From The Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER—A mysterious sortie by Vancouver police to an undisclosed destination to bring back unidentified persons at a cost of possibly $2,500 puzzled city council Tuesday.

It was only apparent that there might be more than one person to be apprehended. Police and city prosecutor Stewart McMorran refused to disclose any details.

The request was from the Vancouver police commission to council.

Its acceptance was urged in the strongest terms by Mayor Fred Hume, a member of the police commission, but he did not explain the request.

Over some protest, council decided to leave assent or rejection of the request in the hands of Alderman Earle Adams and corporation counsel Russ Baker. They will inquire of the police commission today and then make their decision.

Council was only told Vancouver police were asked by Attorney-General Robert Bonner to "carry out a certain investigation" out of the city, and that $2,500 would be needed for this purpose.

"We (the police commission) debated this for hours and decided that for the good of Vancouver we must bring these people back," Mayor Hume told council.

"It's very important, and there's no time."

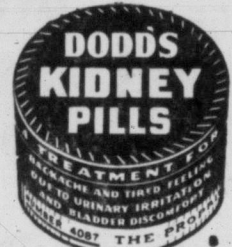

SIX SAFE

WILSONCOCK—Six persons presumed missing on a fishing trip 80 miles east of Vancouver, arrived home safely today. They said they had extended a proposed two-day trip but had failed to notify the parents of one of the party.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martinson had their two children with them together with James Clement, 43, and Elmer Aalgard, 16. Aalgard's father notified RCMP when he did not return as planned Sunday night.

CALIFORNIA TRIAL FIRST—KELOWNA—Jack O'Neill, 28, will not be returned to face a charge of stealing $6,304 from the city until forgery charges facing him in Los Angeles have been disposed of, RCMP said Tuesday.

O'Neill, former assistant city accountant arrested in Los Angeles have been disposed of, RCMP said Tuesday.

High School Graduates

You will find exceptional employment opportunities in the Royal Bank

If you are a young high school graduate with an eye on the future, you will find in the Royal Bank exceptional opportunities. Read carefully the solid reasons why this bank holds a future for you. Discuss this advertisement with your parents. Ask your local manager to tell you more about the opportunities for young men in the Royal Bank.

Facts that spell "opportunity" for young men in the Royal Bank:

1. The Royal Bank is North America's fourth largest bank. Branches number well over 850, with new branches opening all the time. During the past three years we have opened 76 branches. Each new branch means a new managerial appointment... and a string of promotions for young Royal Bankers.
2. You don't need "influence" to get to the top in the Royal Bank. Our chief executive officers, from the Chairman and President down, started as juniors in small branches and won their advancement in open competition. Nothing counts but the man's own qualifications and attitude to his work.
3. Courses in banking are available to all members of the staff for home study. Successful candidates move ahead quickly. Practical experience plus the banking course provide what is virtually the equivalent of a university Commerce course.
4. The Royal Bank has 74 branches abroad... in New York, London, Paris, in many of the largest cities in Central and South America, in Cuba and throughout the West Indies. We have openings for young men particularly interested in gaining international banking experience in other countries.
5. We have one of the most generous pension plans to be found anywhere as well as group life, health and hospital insurance, at low cost to employees.

Ask at your local branch—or write to Head Office, Montreal—for your copy of "Your Future in Banking"—a booklet describing the opportunities for young high school graduates in The Royal Bank of Canada.

NOTHING BUT TROUBLE

LEARNING TO PLAY GOLF

Chipping Simple? Not in Bill's Book

Times sports writer Bill Rayner is learning to play golf at the annual golf clinic at Gorge Vale Golf Club conducted by professional Joe Pryke. This is Bill's fourth lesson; today he describes chipping.

By BILL RAYNER

I added a new weapon to my golfing arsenal out at Gorge Vale Golf Club's beginners' clinic Tuesday night.

That was the seven-iron. Some of the other members of the class had eights or nines, but mine was a seven. It was quite an exasperating club, as I was to find out.

It was the fourth lesson of the six-lesson course, and professional Joe Pryke apportioned the class off to the various assistant instructors for a session of chipping.

Instructor Bert Thirlwell was in charge of our little group of males. He set out to show us the art of hitting chip shots.

The idea is to bring your feet fairly close together, with an open stance. An open stance is when the left foot is brought back from the line of flight.

You are supposed to hit the ball off your right foot, using a short backswing with just your wrists and arms, and hitting down into the ball.

Chip shots are used to get the ball on the green from

DOBBYN DRAFTED BY RANGERS

Pratt, Laycoe Tabbed for Cougar Job

Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League will likely have a new coach next year. And the choice lies between Babe Pratt, former NHL star and ex-New Westminster coach, and Hal Laycoe, Boston Bruin defenceman.

Cougar officials discussed the subject last week prior to managing director Fred Hutchinson's departure to the WHL and NHL meetings.

Laycoe was suggested as a playing coach, Pratt as a non-playing coach. Cougars would not be interested in Laycoe in any other capacity than as a playing mentor.

Another possibility for the position held last year by Eddie Olson is Cal Gardner. However, Gardner enjoyed a fairly successful season during the past NHL campaign and it is believed he will return to the NHL next season.

Laycoe's name came to the BILL DOBBYN goes to Rangers

fore again Tuesday at the NHL meeting in Montreal when he showed up at the parley.

"He is not here as a tourist," said general manager Lynn Patrick of the Boston Bruins with whom the Cougars have a working agreement.

Patrick further intimated that he is willing to help Laycoe to a minor league coaching position if he wanted it.

Laycoe last year was mentioned as a possible Cougar coach before Olson was signed to pilot the locals.

Pratt has not been contacted by Cougar officials, although it is known that he is interested in returning to hockey.

New Westminster Royals are also looking for a new coach as are Quebec Aces of the QHL.

Other news on the pick front had three WHL players drafted by NHL clubs.

Bill Dobbyn of the Cougars was selected by the Rangers; Guy Lafleur of Seattle Americans by Boston; Mickey Keating of Winnipeg by Montreal.

Bill Shvetz of Calgary was drafted by Cleveland of the AHL.

NHL clubs today will make known to each other the 18 players plus two goalies allowed on each club's protected list.

Any not on the protected list, whether old hands or newcomers, can be grabbed for $15,000 each.

The joint relation committees sat late considering many regulations that affect all pro leagues in their joint agreements.

The longest discussion revolved around AHL suggestion for a universal draft of amateur players replacing the present system of sponsorship by individual pro clubs.

It was agreed that all pro clubs will submit to the central registry at NHL headquarters confidential reports on the amounts spent in sponsoring amateur teams, particularly the junior A clubs.

It was indicated that if the plan is adopted, no further money would be turned over to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Payment from the pros, about $30,000 a year, essentially is in return for development of youngsters in amateur ranks.

Selke said the Canadiens organization spent $184,000 on sponsored clubs last year.

The overall cost of pro hockey as a whole operating sponsored clubs would be assessed and costs allocated.

Under the proposal, divisions of junior hockey, such as A and B, would disappear. When it came to the draft, each NHL club would first choose a player, then each AHL club and finally each club in the QHL and WHL would alternate in choosing. Choice then would revert to the NHL and so on.

MINOR BALL

Bishop Hurls No-Hitter

Tuesday night was Garry Bishop's night to howl and he positively roared.

Bishop, one of the top flingers in the North Kiwanis Baseball League, heaved an eight-inning no-hitter as Pages defeated Hagels, 8-1, at Athletic Park.

Bishop whiffed eight, walked three and was deprived of his shutout when Doug Skillings reached first base on an error and ultimately scored on a sacrifice fly.

The no-hitter was the first of the season in the North Kiwanis League.

Ford Pokes Homer

Individual heroics were evident in the Hampton Little League where Gerald Ford covered himself with glory by blasting a grand slam home run to lead Beavers to an 11-8 victory over Totems at Hampton Road Park.

Cross Comes Through

Hero for the night in the National Little League was Barry Cross of North Kiwanis. Sent out to produce as a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning, Cross responded by slamming a single that drove in the tying and winning runs as North Kiwanis shaded Rotary, 6-5 at Little League Park. Brian Stipe won the pitchers' duel over Dave Rivers.

Blake Two-Way Star

In Babe Ruth action at Beacon Hill Park, Ricky Blake occupied centre stage. Blake pitched a smart four-hitter for six innings and tossed in a home run and a triple to guide McCall-Davey to an 8-7 victory over Menzies Plumbing.

Chevs Share Top Spot

Morrison's Chevrolets purred into a first-place tie with Victoria Tire in the Colt League, defeating the Tirenens, 13-8 at Windsor Park.

Cosmos Upset Rotary

Doug Gilmore and David Webber combined their pitching talents to hold Rotary to two hits as Cosmopolitans handed Rotary its second loss of the season, 17-2, in a Pony League game at Carnarvon Park.

Pirates Win Slugfest

Pirates broke out in a seven-run rash in the last inning as they took a free-wheeling 12-9 decision over Merchants in a Vic West-Esquimalt Little League encounter at Buller Park.

Win by Default

Capital City Service backed into a first-place tie in the Saanich Babe Ruth League, winning by default over Island Decorators, last-place club in the four-team league.

North Shore Blanks Scots, Share Second

VANCOUVER (CP)—North Shore Aircoos defeated St. Andrews 4-0 before 1,203 fans here Tuesday night to move into a second-place tie with the losers in the Coast Soccer League.

Each team now has four points, one less than the league-leading Halecos, but Aircoos have a game in hand.

They led 1-0 at halftime on a goal scored by Gordon Iton at the 33-minute mark.

In the second half, Neal McEachnie opened the scoring with one minute gone. Art Hughes added the other. Aircoos goals at three minutes and 43 minutes in the period.

It was a one-sided game, with St. Andrews playing far below the form they have displayed in earlier games.

North Shores will play New Westminster here Friday night, with Halecos going to Victoria.

MARG'S RED HOT

Colwood Golf Club's Margaret Mahoney has rocketed into local golfing prominence recently with a succession of victories. On her home ballclub at Colwood Golf Club, Miss Mahoney won the McPherson Cup handicap competition and the Campbell Cup over the weekend and then, on Monday, was medalist in the qualifying round of the City Women's Championship at Gorge Vale. (Times photo.)

Marg Keeps Up Torrid Golf Pace

Margaret Mahoney of Colwood Golf Club continued to tame the terrors of Gorge Vale Golf Club Tuesday as the City Women's Championship tournament advanced to the quarter-finals.

Miss Mahoney, who turned in a medal-winning 91 under adverse conditions in the qualifying round, passed her first match play test with flying colors Tuesday as she scored a 7 and 5 victory over Mrs. A. Castle.

This morning Miss Mahoney was scheduled to meet Mrs. T. G. Harris in a quarter-final match. Mrs. Harris having eliminated Mrs. Barley Humber, 4 and 3.

Medal round runner-up Mrs. H. McIntyre also gained a place in the quarter-finals with a 3 and 1 victory over Mrs. Jack Clark of Gorge Vale.

In other results, Uplands' Mrs. Ken-Lawson defeated Mrs. S. Haynes of Oak Bay, 7 and 6; Mrs. B. Thirlwell of Gorge defeated Mrs. R. Eldridge, 2 up; Mrs. L. Bradley defeated Mrs. R. Fanthorpe, 1 up; Mrs. S. Weston defeated Mrs. H. Vaio, 3 and 2; and Mrs. H. Mearns defeated Mrs. C. McRae, 3 and 2.

Rocks Host 'Bellies; T-Men Win

Ralph Lyndon's Status Still in Hands of CLA

Victoria Shamrocks are somewhat in the position of a man who has a new car but no licence to drive it.

Shamrocks have a brand new player, Ralph Lyndon by name, and are anxious to harness his horse-power, but so far have not received clearance to use the former Winnipeg junior star.

Lyndon will not be in the lineup tonight when Shamrocks host last-place New Westminster Salmonbellies in an Intercity Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena. However, Shamrock coach Whitey Severson hopes to receive Canadian Lacrosse Association sanction to use him in Friday's game at Nanaimo.

Lyndon has been cleared of all Winnipeg obligations but must await the formality of CLA clearance before he will be allowed to play.

If he plays Friday night, Severson plans to put his own shoes and stick back on the shelf, for the time being, at least. A dire manpower shortage forced Severson to shuck his retirement plans and get back into action for two games last week.

Severson reports Lyndon to be "slightly out of shape, but he's a tough guy who should go well against a big club like Nanaimo."

Severson plans no lineup changes for tonight's game with 'Bellies, which presents Rocks with a golden opportunity to pick up some of the ground they have lost to the high-flying Nanaimo squad.

Nanaimo lengthened its first-place lead to nine points last night, blasting Jake Proctor's floundering Pilseners, 16-7, before a Kerrisdale Arena crowd of 1,400.

Rampaging Bobby Allan continued to jeopardize all existing scoring records as he pumped in four more goals and three assists to raise his goal total to 33 and his point total to 44.

American Horse Second In Famed Epsom Derby

EPSOM, Surrey, England (AP)—Lavandin, owned by millionaire perfume maker Pierre Wertheimer, won the 177th running of the Derby in a stirring photo finish today.

Montaval, the only American-owned horse in the field and a 50-to-1 outsider, was second. Montaval is owned by Ralph B. Strassburger of Norristown, Pa.

Twenty-seven three-year-olds started in the gruelling mile and a half race, and Lavandin barely held off the closing surge of Montaval, another French-bred. The finish was close enough for the judges to call for a look at the pictures. They awarded the decision to Lavandin by a neck. Two lengths separated Montaval and Roistar.

Lavandin was the 7-to-1 favorite. Roistar was a 22-to-1 shot. An Irish sweepstakes was based on the race.

Jockey Rae Johnstone, a native Australian who captured the Derby with My Love in 1948 and Galsador in 1950, rode the winner.

Montaval was ridden by Freddy Palmer, who won the 1955 Derby with the French colt Phil Drake.

Roistar, the third-place horse, is Irish bred and owned by J. M. McGrath, a former IRA leader.

Lavandin is the fifth French colt since the end of the war to win the classic.

Lavandin is a bay colt by Verse II out of Lavande. He is trained in France by Alex Head. Hornbeam was fourth.

First money was £17,349, second £2,040, and third £1,020.

The Derby is the world's premier race for three-year-olds. All carried 126 pounds.

The photo finishers took the lead in the upper stretch and Lavandin held on to win by inches. The time was 2:36.4. The record is 2:33.8 set by Mahmoud in 1936. The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret attended.

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Monday started a one-week training camp for promising young Canadian players.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—A tip from Bob Elliott and Paul Richards' switch from Chicago to Baltimore gave the Orioles Ronald Hugh Ferrarese, who schooled observers predict will continue handcuffing American League batters.

Elliott, who murdered southpaw pitching in the National League for 13 years, faced Dorr Ferrarese in the Pacific Coast League. Toward the end of the 1954 season, he told Richards, then managing the White Sox, that this was one left-hander who got right-hand hitters out. That's why the South Siders paid Oakland $30,000 for Ferrarese's contract.

Richards remembered Elliott's tip, and his second package deal in Baltimore—the first gave the Yankees Bob Turley and Don Larsen—was with the White Sox and included the unknown little portlander, Ferrarese.

Oddly enough, Ferrarese, who held the Yankees hitless for eight innings and dealt the champions their first shutout in 96 games, or since last July 6, the other afternoon, was plucked out of Saint Mary's College and off the Oakland sandlots by none other than Casey Stengel.

Ferrarese—pronounced Fer-are-ees—struck out 21 Indians and Yankees in his first two outings, losing a heart-breaker to Bob Lemon and Cleveland while fanning 13. He slammed the door in the Yankees' faces for two innings in a relief assignment.

'Too Small,' Thought Casey

"When I first saw the kid in 1948, I hesitated about signing him because he was so small," recalls Professor Stengel. Ferrarese, 26, of Italian parentage, now stands 5'9, weighs 165. "Oakland farmed him out and you'd hear, 'He's all right, but...'" The young left-hander's usual trouble. "He was wild," explains Manager Stengel.

In eight seasons in the minors, with two out for Army service in Honolulu, during which he pitched, Ferrarese was undistinguished save for two stints. He won 18 for Oakland in 1954, fanning 184 but walking 174. Shipped to San Antonio for the closing five weeks of last season, he had a 9-0 record, whiffing 99 while walking 47 with an earned-run average of 1.49.

Ferrarese credits Charley Dressen and Richards with helping him most.

"I was strictly a thrower before Dressen got hold of me in Oakland," he recalls. "He helped me most by just pitching me. He shortened my stride."

"Richards balanced my pitching stance. I had been a bad pitcher with men on base. It took Richards and the coaching staff all spring, but they got my weight back on the left foot so I could get leverage on the ball."

His Curve Better Than Most

"Don was wild to the left," explains Richards. "So we moved everything six inches to the right and that was it."

The Indians and Yankees agree that Ferrarese, whose big league speed is faster than it looks, has the best curve they've seen thus far this year. It breaks down and away at the last split-second. Casey Stengel adds that the young man is the fastest pitcher he has set eyes on this season.

"He's quick in the strike zone, which is the secret of pitching," concludes Paul Richards. "When pitchers with sweeping curves get a piece of the plate, umpires just don't call strikes."

Don Ferrarese, you see, convinces everybody, including the umpires.

Third week qualifying ladder in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Ladder Derby is wide open after two days of ineffectual fishing. Only nine fish have been weighed in so far and the biggest is Archie Mar's 10-pound, 10-ouncer, and running down to a 3.5 pounder.

White's Homer Gives Oilers Narrow Win

Husky football player Red White hits a softball with the same shattering effect that results when he hits an opposition grid line.

White, a catcher for Re-Refined Oil in the Senior B Softball League, blasted a seventh-inning home run Tuesday night to give Oilers a hard-won 2-1 victory over second-place Firefighters.

The big blow provided the winning edge over the Smokies, who scored their only run in the ninth inning, and gave Rod Turner the tight pitching decision over Firefighters' ace, Barry Jackson.

Bears Grab J. C. Caroline

CHICAGO (AP)—J. C. Caroline, who topped Red Grange's yard-gaining record at Illinois as a 1953 sophomore and played pro football in Canada, has been added to Chicago Bears' roster.

The spindly-legged Negro half-back, from Columbia, S.C., compiled a total offense record of 1,670 yards for Illinois in 1953 to become the first gridders at the school to crack Grange's mark of 1,269 in 1923.

REMEMBER THE MOVIE?

Buc Miracle May Be Real

By JOHN CARROLL
United Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Manager Bobby Bragan hasn't noticed any angel feathers floating down around second base yet. Nor has he been seen talking to himself while standing alone on the infield in the fading twilight.

But what's happening to his pesky Pirates has all Pittsburgh talking about a possible "miracle." And therein lies a strange parallel.

Several years ago, a motion picture titled "Angels in the Outfield" came out of Hollywood. It depicted the ever-losing Pirates and their hard-bitten, umpire-baiting manager, who couldn't even win an argument let alone a ball game.

That is— they couldn't win until the hard-boiled manager began getting "tips" from a cherub-faced little girl in an orphanage who "talked" with angels.

Then came the miracle, after the manager had agreed to walk the straight and narrow in exchange for some cherubic advice on how to develop a winner.

An outfielder, who (in the movie) specialized in letting fly balls bounce off his head, became a demon on defense. All he needed, so the angels said, was glasses.

An infielder suddenly was transformed into a home run hitter after leading the league in strikeouts. An error afield was practically unheard of as the Pirates began to climb toward an eventual pennant.

Strikingly, Bragan has abandoned the wild tactics and umpire-cneuing which earned him the title of "Bad Bobby" the three seasons he managed Hollywood (that's right) in the Pacific Coast League. No more madcap antics for him. He's playing it straight—and winning.

MONTREAL—Davy Moore, 135, Springfield, Ohio, knocked out Charlie Slaughter, 133, Plainfield, N.J. (4).

Moore the Best—Says So

LONDON (AP)—Archie Moore today brushed aside all questions about another defence of his light-heavyweight title and said: "I'm the best heavyweight in the world—and that's the title I am after."

The cagey old fellow from San Diego, Calif., cleared one big hurdle on the way to the crown vacated by Rocky Marciano with a 10th-round TKO of Yolande Pompey of Trinidad in a light-heavyweight title fight in London's Harringay Arena Tuesday night.

"Now I want that heavy-weight title," Moore said. "I'm entitled to it. Marciano nominated me as his logical successor. Floyd Patterson and Tommy Duggan, stopped Yolande Pompey, 17½, Trinidad, 16. Moore retained world light-heavyweight title."

An improved recreational area is coming around Upper Campbell and Buttle Lakes... but access must be limited to authorized persons at present in the interests of YOUR SAFETY.

During the construction of the Upper Campbell dam and the associated reservoir around Upper Campbell and Buttle Lakes on Vancouver Island, there is a large amount of traffic of heavy vehicles on the roads in the area. Because of the nature of these roads—most of which are privately owned—and the nature of the traffic, these heavy vehicles present a definite hazard to passenger cars and their occupants.

The project includes provision of certain recreational amenities, but until construction is completed, your co-operation is respectfully requested in avoiding the area.

There are control points on the private roads and only authorized persons will be allowed to pass. Strathcona Lodge and Sutherland's Camp on the present shores of Upper Campbell Lake have been purchased by the Power Commission in anticipation of the filling of the reservoir. They are in use, meanwhile, as survey camps, and are not open to the public.

Three-Way Union in the Health Services Urged on Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt

By PETE LOUDON

A jumble of overlapping health services in Greater Victoria results in Victoria and Esquimalt shouldering costs run up by their Oak Bay and Saanich neighbors.

Victoria-Esquimalt health board, headed by chairman Coun. G. K. Sammon, is angling now toward formation of a three-way union, including Saanich. The present union board says Oak Bay will eventually have to come into union too, to make everything come out even. Either that or there will have to be a charge for service to persons outside the municipal union.

For years, with a desire to improve health generally, nurses, doctors and sanitation workers have blithely been crossing municipal borders in response to requests from a public who apparently doesn't know or care which of the currently duplicate health services administrators which area.

As a result financing became jumbled.

For instance, it's almost summer and many will go abroad. There is a travellers' immunization clinic at Victoria's Cook Street health centre. Based on last year's experience, eight per cent of the anti-disease injections will be made into Oak Bay arms. Ten per cent will be given Saanich residents.

This "needles" Victoria-Esquimalt civic budgeters because literally they are paying for the shot.

Another instance—almost all Greater Victoria restaurants are located in Victoria; same applies to food packers and cold storage plants. All of the produce, much of it eaten by Saanich and Oak Bay residents, is subject to scrutiny and sanitary regulation imposed by inspectors, whose wages and expenses are paid by Victoria and Esquimalt.

There are inequalities, too. In service depending upon which district one lives in. Johnny goes to school in Oak Bay and is medically examined every year. Tom, Jim and Bill are schooled in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. They are examined physically only in grades one, seven and 10.

In Victoria-Esquimalt there is a doctor present at all well-baby clinics. In Saanich and Oak Bay no doctor attends. As Victoria-Esquimalt has the better-known service and out-of-town moms are probably going to town anyway, attendance at the clinic on Cook Street is usually 10 per cent from Saanich and 15 per cent from Oak Bay.

Once again, Victoria-Esquimalt taxpayers bear the cost.

The confusion reaches a new height at Lansdowne Junior High School in Saanich, where two-thirds of the students reside either in Oak Bay or Victoria. Saanich provides the school health service.

But, home visiting, communicable disease control, are responsibility of the municipality where the child lives.

At present there are grave differences in health protective services. Saanich has one medical health officer for 45,000 persons; Victoria-Esquimalt plans soon to have two, one for each 31,000 of population. Oak Bay has a part-time MHO.

Victoria-Esquimalt has a public health nurse for each 6,100 persons. Oak Bay has one for each 8,400.

Saanich has one sanitary inspector for each 24,000 persons while Victoria-Esquimalt has one for each 10,000. Oak Bay has none.

With savings involved through ending duplication of records and services, most authorities agree, the wider program could be applied to all Greater Victoria at no more cost than at present.

Japanese Prayed On Himalaya Peak

POKHARA, Nepal (Reuters)—Two of the men who conquered the ninth highest mountain in the world, 26,688-foot Mount Manaslu in the Himalayas, described here today what they did when they reached the summit. "We bowed in worship there and thanked Almighty God for giving us success," said Shio Imanishi, a Japanese climber who made the initial assault May 9 with his Sherpa porter, Gyalzen. In 90 minutes on the summit, a pointed peak too narrow to hold them both, they took turns taking photographs and drank fruit juice and tea.

Island Schools Overflow; Basements Must Be Used

DUNCAN—Basement rooms will be used to accommodate an additional 210 students who will attend Cowichan High School and Duncan, Cobble Hill, Shawnigan and new Somenos elementary schools in the fall.

F. A. McLellan, school inspector, told the District 65 school board Cowichan High will see the largest influx. Built for 750 and now accommodating 930, it must cope with 100 additional students in the fall.

Opening of the new South Cowichan Junior High near Cobble Hill in January will ease the pressure considerably. Until then basement rooms at at Shawnigan, Glenora and Cobble Hill and Duncan schools, Sahtlam.

and additional space at Sylvania school, will be refurbished and put to use.

Mr. McLellan said three new teachers will be needed at Duncan elementary. And one each at Shawnigan, Glenora and Cobble Hill and Duncan schools, Sahtlam.

Five-Year-Plan Urged in Industry Training

TORONTO (BUP)—Some 2,000 captains of industry met today to take the pulse of the Canadian economy, swap ideas and chart the future.

All 10 provinces were represented by delegates to the 85th annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, self-billed as "Canada's industrial parliament."

The main topics being discussed during the three-day meeting were labor relations, the effects of federal trade and taxation policies, management techniques, transportation problems, salesmanship and public relations.

CMA president T. A. Rice of Hamilton, Ont., called in his presidential address today for a five-year plan by industry to help meet "the mounting problem of shortage in the whole range of skilled personnel required for the future."

Rice said the "awakened giant" Russia had outdistanced the west in the annual output of trained scientists and technicians.

The CMA president warned that "acceptance of the theory that annual wage boosts are vital to the expansion of purchasing power and that management can keep fattening the rate each year for the rest of time, is exactly the same as national acceptance of a permanent economy of creeping inflation."

NEW YORK (CP)—Canadian dollar was at a premium of 13 1/2 per cent in sterling 32 3/8 7/32.

dismiss a proposal to import natural gas from Canada's projected trans-Canada pipeline for sale in U.S. north-central states. The National Coal Association, joined in the legal step by six other groups, asked the commission to dismiss applications by Tennessee Gas Transmission Company and Midwestern Gas Transmission Company for permission to import Canadian gas at Emerson, Man., and export American gas to Canada at Niagara Falls for sale in Montreal.

The association also urged the commission to refuse to reconvene the hearings on the Tennessee-Midwestern applications, now awaiting a commission call for cross-examination of the firm's witness.

The association was joined in the move by United Mine Workers of America, Fuel Research Council, Maher Coal Bureau and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

They claimed that Midwestern, which proposes to tap the trans-Canada line at Emerson, has failed to show that Trans-Canada Pipe Lines has the necessary permits from the Canadian government authorizing it either to export or import gas.

The Quiet Smile is Standard Equipment

You see that smile often on an Oldsmobile driver.

It first crept across his face as he bought his Olds—and he thought about the great value the price represented.

And you see it still—for instance, when he contemplates a long, normally tiring trip—and thinks what a wonderful difference an Oldsmobile makes.

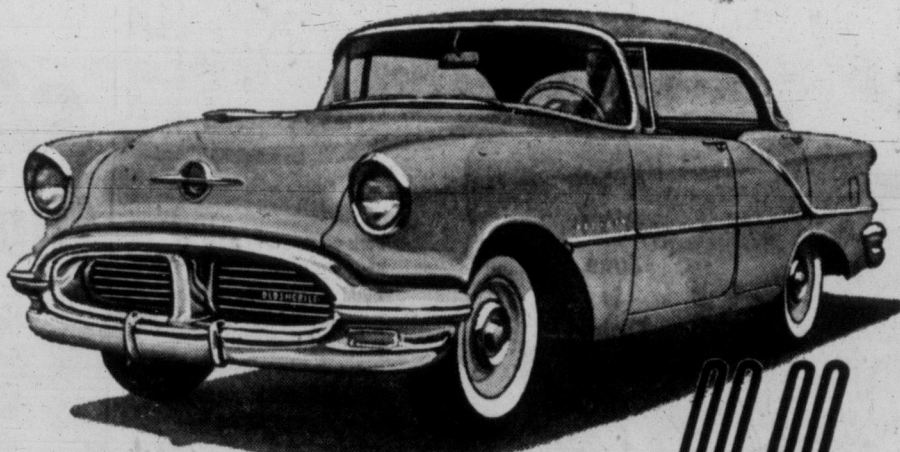

You see it again as he watches some other car jack-rabbit away at a stoplight—knowing how easily he could be first away if he wanted.

You see it, too, as he accelerates from any speed—feeling the superb smoothness and response of Jetaway automatic transmission and Rocket "T" engines.

Yes, the quiet smile is standard equipment on any new Oldsmobile.

You see, it's a smile of complete satisfaction—the natural response to the unique pleasure of owning an Olds.

Plan Limit For Trailers In Esquimalt

Esquimalt owners of living trailers or caravans soon will be prohibited from parking them for long periods in residential or apartment zones in the municipality.

Council Monday night agreed to instruct the municipal solicitor to draw up a by-law amendment to zoning laws, in spite of solicitor T. P. O'Grady's opinion this would "not be an easy by-law to enforce."

The new amendment will restrict the permissible parking period to six months.

Council endorsed an inter-municipal committee proposal to ask legislation of the provincial government which would enable municipalities to make grants to a society such as the Victoria Symphony Society.

Such legislation, if provided, would still leave actual granting of monies up to each individual municipality.

Special Saanich Meeting Called to Discuss Hall

A special Saanich council meeting will be called to discuss a plan for a combined city-Saanich ratepayers' hall.

The date of the meeting will be announced later.

The plan was suggested by Reeve Arthur Ash to Mayor Percy Scurrell last week in view of the need of the two municipalities for new offices.

Council is also considering a plan to extend the present Royal Oak buildings at a cost of $100,000.

FIGURES STILL RISING

Chetwynd Spells B.C. Trade Boom

Trade and Industry Minister in the first eight days of the month before the season closed. Ralph Chetwynd today reported a gain in the volume of retail sales of 13.4 per cent in March this year over March, 1955. Part of the increase, he said, was accounted for by Easter falling in March this year.

Total freight movement on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway during the first three weeks of May rose 27 per cent above the same period last year. While revenue carloadings were down fractionally, cars received from other connections increased sharply. Lumber shipments were off, reflecting the weaker export markets for lumber.

The minister said total grain shipments through the terminal elevators of Vancouver, New Westminster, Victoria and Prince Rupert during the current crop year are 3.3 million bushels in advance of shipments for the comparative period last year.

Heavy shipments during the first half of May pushed the 1955-56 figure as of May 16 to 84.8 million bushels, compared to 81.5 in the 1954-55 season—an increase of four per cent.

B.C. lumber shipments continued slow during April, down 27 per cent under April, 1955. Exports to the United Kingdom and countries other than the United States were down 48.6 million. Shipments to the United States and possessions remained about the same as last year.

Landings of fish on the Pacific Coast reached record proportions in March and were valued at $1,151,000. The increased value was largely due to the heavy volume of herring caught

$4.6 Billion Federal Estimates Establish Peacetime Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Supplemental estimates tabled Tuesday in the Commons boosted proposed federal spending for the 1956-57 fiscal year to $4,674,125,513, highest in peacetime.

The total represents an increase of $173,612,513 over estimated spending for 1955-56. The previous peacetime high was $4,567,794,000 in 1954-55 and the all-time record was $5,322,000,000 in the war year of 1943-44.

The supplementaries tabled by Finance Minister Harris totalled $146,025,513 and came on top of original estimates of $4,528,100,000 announced Jan. 26. It is likely further supplementaries will be proposed near the close of the 1956-57 fiscal year next March 31.

The government does not include old age pensions in its estimates of budget expenditures. The pension, financed by special taxes and paid from a special fund, will be approximately $379,515,000 in the current year. If counted in, they would boost the estimates to a total $5,053,640,513.

The new supplementaries do not affect Mr. Harris' estimated budget surplus of $113,000,000 for the current fiscal year started last April 1. This estimated surplus compares with a deficit of $51,700,000 for the 1955-56 fiscal year.

The finance minister estimated in the budget actual spending of $4,650,000,000 for the current year. Biggest supplementary item is $50,000,000 to meet the 1955-56 deficit in the old age pension fund.

Last year's amount for this purpose was $63,300,000.

Another major item provides $30,000,000 to cover part of the pay increases recently received by civil servants and armed forces and RCMP personnel.

A grant of $12,000,000 is proposed for the publicly-owned CBC to cover an anticipated 1956-57 deficit on television service.

A loan of $3,500,000 is proposed for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. It would restore a special account used in 1955-56 for land development projects in co-operation with the provinces.

Other spending items forecast: Payments to members of the Commons and Senate for travel-

WATER PIPES FREEZE IN JUNE—IN ALBERTA

INNISFAIL, Alta. (CP) — Several blocks of buildings in the downtown district of this central Alberta town, 70 miles north of Calgary, were without water for most of the day.

The reason: Frozen water pipes—in June.

There wasn't an old-timer in town who could match that with a "good-old-days tough-times" tale.

Vaccines in Use Against Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
DETROIT (AP) — Some 30 stricken humans have been given vaccines made from their own cancers, a Boston physician has disclosed.

It is too early to tell whether they benefited. But there are signs that they did.

Each vaccine was prepared from bits of each person's own cancer, and then injected under the skin of that same person. The aim was to increase natural resistance to far-advanced cancer.

It could work by forming antibodies against the cancer, and by increasing the number of healthy defensive cells resisting its spread.

No Inquest Planned In Alberta Slayings

SLAIN—William Olah, 30-year-old sailor in the Royal Canadian Navy, was fatally shot.

ERSKINE, Alta. (CP)—Alberta's chief coroner said Tuesday the weekend rifle-slaying of seven persons and the subsequent death of John E. Clark, Social Credit member of the provincial legislature, has been officially described as murder followed by suicide.

There would be no inquest.

Dr. M. M. Cantor said: "It certainly is a case of homicide followed by suicide. There will not be an inquest and I have so instructed Dr. R. Zender, coroner at Stettler."

The bodies of Mrs. Clark, her four children, a hired man, and a visitor to the Clark farm were found early Sunday with bullets through their heads at the farmhouse, 10 miles west of Stettler.

Airline Hostesses Seek Protection

By FRANK ELEAZOR
WASHINGTON (UP) — Congressmen clucked sympathetically Tuesday over the plight of a shapely airline stewardess who had to lock herself in a cockpit to escape the amorous advances of an inebriated passenger.

To help the chased girl, and others, a House commerce subcommittee approved a bill to ban the serving of liquor by airlines. The full committee will send the measure to the House floor next week.

The case of the girl in the locked cockpit was one of a number of complaints filed with the subcommittee by airline pilots and hostesses.

One stewardess told of a drunken woman passenger who started taking off her clothes. Another said that on nearly every trip some male "tries to pin me against the wall." She knows all the escape routes, however.

"In many cases," still another hostess related, "the living room atmosphere of the plane deteriorated into that of a saloon or burlesque house."

Sometimes, one hostess said, drunken passengers get

Ultrasonic Dentistry To End Pain

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A Chicago dentistry professor says ultrasonic equipment may make drilling less painful to patients.

Dr. Arne F. Rommes, professor of operative dentistry at Northwestern University, told the Canadian Dental Association's annual meeting Tuesday he is testing equipment which manufacturers claim gives painless treatment.

He added, however, that such equipment at the present is auxiliary rather than mandatory in the profession.

Dr. Rommes said an ultrasonic drill looks much like the whining, rotary drill now used by most dentists. But instead of drilling, the ultrasonic tool vibrates—up to 1,000,000 times a minute—and erodes away the tooth enamel.

He said tests conducted by the United States Navy indicated that no damage is done to the nerve but not enough is yet known about the effect the process has on body tissue.

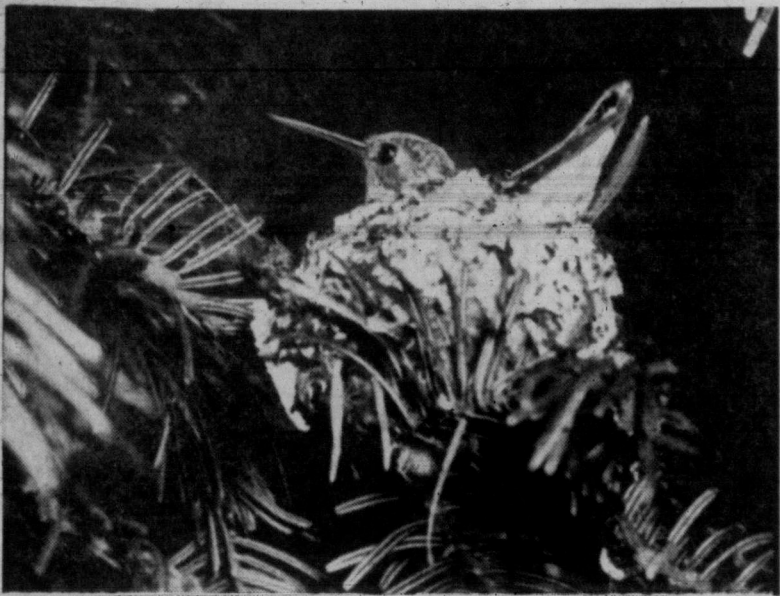

Bank Robber Jailed 25 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Angelo P. John, 33-year-old mastermind of two suburban Westchester county bank robberies totalling nearly $300,000, was sentenced Tuesday to 25 years in prison. His accomplice, Arthur L. Paisner, 33, who pleaded guilty and testified against John, received an 18-year term. A third man, involved in one of the holdups, Rocco Tateo, 32, got 22½ years. The county Trust Company's Fort Chester branch was robbed of $188,785 March 2 and its Mount Vernon branch was robbed of $97,563 on Sept. 24, 1954.

UNUSUAL PICTURE of mother hummingbird on nest was taken on Old Saanich Road home of H. W. Armitage. Nest clings to fir bough.

RARE HUMMINGBIRD PICTURES SHOW LITTLE MOTHER NESTING

Selasphorus rufus, which objects to everything except flowers and other selasphorus rufuses, had her picture taken Tuesday.

She's a hummingbird, currently a guest of H. W. Armitage, 4973 Old West Road.

Times photographer Bill Halkett stealthily approached the tiny nest, paused briefly, and the fine pictures adjoining resulted.

He was about 10 feet away from bird and nest.

There was no sign of the male hummingbird. Ornithologists are still puzzled where the male birds go when mother is nesting. They just take off, ostensibly to follow the blooming flowers elsewhere.

There was no indication the bird was at all frightened by the flash of the camera.

In fact, hummingbirds are not frightened by anything. People who know birds say if hummingbirds were the size of cows, they'd have to be machine-gunned immediately or cause riotous havoc everywhere.

The type here is common to B.C. and Alaska. The nest is a solidly-built little cup of feathery-down, plant fibres and spider webs, sometimes decorated with lichens.

Children's Zoo Studied for Park

Realtor Offers Birds, Animals, Materials

Establishment of a children's zoo in Beacon Hill Park is under consideration at City Hall.

M. H. King of King Realty met with council parks committee today and offered to donate materials and labor and to obtain farmyard birds and animals if the city would agree to maintain the zoo.

WINNER OF $2,000 Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited teacher training scholarship for Ladysmith is Sylvia Heys, 18, Ladysmith High School graduate who will attend University of B.C. in the fall. She came here from England with her parents seven years ago. Four other similar scholarships are being awarded by the company in other districts.

FELINE FIREWORKS Park Men Deny Cat-Trapping Accusation

Family cats have been disappearing in vicinity of Beacon Hill Park and a complaint to the city today suggested they were being trapped by parks authorities.

Parks officials denied the charge. They said they hadn't trapped a cat in two years, but warned they would if game birds began disappearing again.

Complaint came from Mrs. H. M. Kerswell, secretary for the Cats Protection League Inc. She said her organization wanted the practice stopped.

Committee was told abandoned cats and coons had taken all the city's ornamental pheasants, wood ducks and mandarin ducks and parks officials would recommend no change in policy to trap cats when trouble of that nature occurs.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said box traps baited with meat are used, which do not injure the marauding animal. Once caught a cat is turned over to the pound for disposal.

He said if cats were tagged by owners, his department would consider returning them if damages were paid and assurance given the cat would not be allowed to prowl the park.

Ald. Robert Macmillan, chairman of parks, said he has had at least six letters similar to the one from Mrs. Kerswell.

It was suggested by parks authorities that perhaps other residents in the area are trapping cats.

Soldier Faces Assault Count After Fight

Cpl. Arnold Harry Hazell, Camp Gordon Head, was remanded in Saanich police court today to appear Thursday at 2 p.m. on a charge of assault causing bodily harm to fellow soldier Rfn Felep Wyskinski.

Police arrested Hazell Tuesday afternoon at the army camp after hearing details of a fight which occurred at the camp early Sunday after a downtown drinking session.

Wyskinski is in HMCS Naden hospital on the "seriously ill list, but is making good progress," according to authorities.

He was reported to have a fractured jaw, shattered teeth and cuts.

A group of soldiers accompanying Wyskinski took him to Camp Gordon Head medical officer after the fight and he was transferred to Naden hospital when the seriousness of his injuries was determined.

Army authorities would not comment.

In another incident, Richard Jukild, 829 Bay, was found by police "badly beaten" and lying on a downtown Blanshard Street boulevard at 7.20 p.m. Tuesday.

He told police his assailant was known to him but he would not lay a charge.

Police took him to Jubilee Hospital with a broken nose, facial cuts and lacerated right eye. He was treated and detained overnight.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—I have an old stone ginger beer bottle bearing the name Thorpe and Co., Ltd., Victoria, with the trade mark a gauntlet or glove. Will you tell me when they were in business in this city?—S.K.

A.—The name of the firm first appeared in the city directory in 1893. It was not found in the directory after 1924. The beverages produced and marketed by the company were widely and favorably known along this coast.

Q.—What is the history of the expression to "throw down the gauntlet"?—S.S.

A.—The Oxford English Dictionary defines gauntlet in its original use as a glove worn as part of medieval armor, usually made of leather covered with plates of steel. In medieval jousting to throw down a gauntlet was to give a challenge. To take up the gauntlet was to accept the challenge.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

'LITTLE HOUSE, SO SMALL'

Original Convent Marks 98th Year

"Little house, so small and old Cherished memories thou dost hold Speak, oh little house today Of those times long passed away.

Fill the eager heart of youth With their tenderness and truth."

These few words are inscribed on a hand-illuminated plaque in the original St. Ann's School, still standing here on Heywood Avenue, built in 1858.

Tuesday marked the 98th anniversary of the structure and the year the first Sisters of St. Ann arrived here.

PRAYERS

The nuns and students of St. Ann's Academy marked the occasion with special prayers and processions.

The first pupil was the same year the sisters arrived, and within six months they had 35 pupils. Today they teach 550 students here, 40 of whom live in at the academy.

The sisters are now planning their centenary celebrations for 1958, at which time the original convent and school may be moved closer to the academy itself, across the road.

From the log cabin grew St. Joseph's Hospital, as well as Mount St. Mary's, home for the aged and chronically ill. St. Joseph's was built 17 years after the sisters arrived on the Island. They spread to Alaska, the Yukon and other parts of B.C. and now have 27 "houses" which take care of schools and hospitals.

Principal, Inspector, 'At Odds'

Cordial relations never did exist between Saanich school inspector Dr. Harold Johns and Mount Newton High School principal Arthur E. Voege, a board of reference hearing Mr. Voege's appeal against demotion heard today.

"I don't think we had warm feelings at any time," Mr. Voege told the board. "If Dr. Johns had wanted to develop warm feelings, there were many matters he could have consulted me on, but he rarely came to my office."

The board's decision to demote Mr. Voege from the school principalship was based on a report by Dr. Johns, which was reviewed in detail at earlier sittings.

TIME LACK

Mr. Voege disagreed with the portions of the report claiming lack of leadership, disciplinary difficulties, teaching conditions, and other aspects. He did, however, agree that more could have been done if he had time.

"I don't think I wasted a minute of my time," he said.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

In yesterday's discourse on my losing war with the telephone, I neglected to mention one of the great difficulties.

When I talk on the telephone, people on the other end rarely catch the full import of my words.

Or, to put it more simply, they don't know what I am talking about.

Like so many people in this day and age, I am inclined to be lip lazy. If I phone Lyle the butcher and ask for a roast of beef, he is apt to send me a rutabaga.

But lip laziness is not the whole reason for difficulties of communication via the telephone. In fact, human beings have difficulty communicating with each other under any circumstance.

The reason was explained recently by a university professor who stepped before his senior class in modern languages, took a deep breath, and said:

Crash! Water larder warts sunned lack itch udder! Effervescent further deferent saturations an with way harem, wade heifer haliver tam sang witch worse witch.

Not only did the class agree, but one of the more jelly gut furloughs, who also happened to be a chair-later, jumped up to lead the group in one of the most popular campus songs. Everyone joined in on:

"Alley wetter, jaunty alley wetter,
Alley wetter, shutter plumber ray.
Shutter plumber railer tat
Shutter plumber railer tat
Ale a tat, ale a tat
Ale a tat, ale a tat
O,
Alley wetter, jaunty alley wetter,
Alley wetter, shutter plumber ray.

Pleased with this spontaneous display, and remembering his mother's advice that dolly board cashes or warm, the professor dismissed the class until next week.

I since nearly thrust I make myself near.

A New Mechanical Razor
Not Run by Electricity!

By PENNY SAVER

Father's Day isn't far off and if there is any time during the year when fathers are a definite problem—this is it. For some, it's difficult to think of appropriate gifts because he seems to have nearly everything he needs, or at least prefers to buy his own clothes and gadgets. On the other hand, some fathers never seem to buy themselves anything, so that when Father's Day comes around you don't know where to begin to buy needed items. Yes, a problem it is, but I've found something that I'm sure will bring a sparkle to the eyes of any man.

It's a razor. I keep wanting to call it an electric razor, but that's not what it is at all. German made, these slick machines have a plastic coiled cord that protrudes at one side. Give this cord several sharp and full pulls, and a motor is in full action.

The friction action of the mechanism makes it rotate in your hand, and can be easily revved up with a few pulls on the cord, at the end of which is a soft cleaning brush for the motor. No electricity, no plugging into car lighter sockets, and no worries about batteries conking out. They come in foam-filled cases that look like leather and have all-around zippers. For travelling, these razors are just wonderful.

When a man buys a razor, one of his first questions deals with the servicing and replacement of parts. Even though this is foreign-made, the parts are inexpensive and obtainable right in town. It can be serviced or repaired without having to be sent out of town. A plastic cap protects the rotary action razor head. It's yours for $21.95. He'd love it.

Beach sandals for men or women make romping or relaxing on the beach much more enjoyable, for tender soles are protected from bits of broken glass or from very hot sand.

Adjustable, they're scuff-type sandals, with a top buckle to assure that they stay on. The plastic is sturdy, so that they will take a lot of wear and can be easily cleaned with a damp cloth. Indestructible, they won't tear. They come in a shiny bronze or white, and cost 79 cents a pair.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find the razor, sandals, or any items mentioned here in the corner during past weeks.

AS WE LIVE

Let Mother-in-Law
Live in Your Home

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

There is nothing, with the exception of "another woman," that can wreck a home more quickly than financial troubles. That is why a wife should try to avoid them in any way she can.

(Q)—"In the past year, my husband has had to help support his mother. She is in poor health and cannot work as she used to. She has a small pension from her husband but it is not enough to cover her expenses. My husband seems to begrudge me every cent I spend, even for food. I simply wouldn't dare to buy new clothes. We have no children and I have offered to go back to work as I worked before I was married and made enough to support myself very nicely. But, he won't hear of it. He claims it would look as if he couldn't support me, and he is always trying to put on a good front before others. Things are getting so tense at home I am afraid it will wreck our marriage. What would you advise me to do?"—L. W.

(A)—I would advise you to do anything you can to relieve the tension that comes with financial worries. Otherwise, you are likely to find your marriage will go on the rocks. Once antagonisms grow up, as they seem to be doing in your home now, they often persist, even after the financial worries are over.

There are several suggestions I can offer about relieving the financial strain. See if any of them will meet your problems and, if so, apply them at once. The first is to practice even stricter economies than you have done. You will be surprised to find how much you can save if you watch for sales and buy in quantities.

The second thing is to bring your mother-in-law to live with you. This is not too desirable, but it certainly will save money to eliminate an extra overhead expense. Even if it means turning your living room into a bedroom for her, you can explain this to outsiders by saying she should not be living alone.

If your husband does not want you to go out to work, suggest that he get extra work over weekends and in the evenings. If you take care of his mother, he can carry an extra burden by doing extra jobs.

French Twist Hairdo Flattering
Goes With Season's Large Hats

Much curiosity has been expressed about the French twist hair style. Many women claim they have never seen what it looks like, while others have seen it, but don't know how it's done. Still others want to know if this style is for them.

The French twist is a roll of hair that goes up the back of the head. It is worn with smooth sides and either bangs or a slicked-back brow. It goes well under platter or dishpan hats and is therefore seen around quite a bit this season. It is a cool style and a very sophisticated one.

The chief stylist for a national chain reports that women with heads of all shapes request this style. He finds, however, that women with full faces and short necks get special benefit from wearing the style. When it is used for a thinner-faced woman, it is done with a fringe over the forehead and curls at the ears.

The French twist can be done with any long hair and, by an expert, with hair as short as three and a half inches.

It is, generally speaking, a job to be done by an expert.

Ruel, chief stylist for Coiffures Americana, showed us how it was done. According to him, a woman who is not a violent sleeper can leave the style intact from salon visit to salon visit.

However, ability at reading directions, a double mirror and practice may enable women to do it at home between visits.

The hair is divided into four portions. First, part down the centre all the way to the nape of the neck, to half the hair. Then part from the crown, down each side to behind the ear. The twist is done with the two back quarters.

The right back section is then brushed over to the centre of the back, rolled over the thumb and pinned down with hairpins, working from top to bottom. The other back section is done the same way, only it's pinned on top of the first roll. The sides are then smoothed back and blended in with hairpins.

The whole trick is doing it smoothly and tightly. And this is no mean trick. Women who want to try this style had better hire themselves to the nearest professional salon.

Sophisticated and cool, the French twist hair style is in great vogue this season. Much of the popularity is due to Grace Kelly. This version has curls on the crown and a waved fringe over the forehead.

Miss Maimie S. Simpson is the guest of Mrs. D. E. Cameron, Carleton Place, during her visit in Victoria.

Dean of Women Remembered And Loved by Former Pupils

When she travels, whether it be to Europe, the Orient or to Victoria, Miss Maimie S. Simpson finds someone she has taught or counselled in former years in Edmonton. They meet very often in the stores, on the streets, in hotels. "Many come up and speak to me first," she says with a quiet smile. "They tell me who they are and remind me that I taught them. They all seem so happy in talking of their school and university days."

A teacher in public and high schools for many years in Edmonton, Miss Simpson has now been dean of women at University of Alberta for 10 years. Directly under her supervision is the large residence on the university campus that houses 156 girls. Her work, however, covers the whole women's student body that numbers more than 1,300.

Organizing, planning and counselling take up much of Dean Simpson's time today. To the exclusion of her "first love"—as she puts it—teaching and lecturing.

She did lecture in education at the university a few years ago but that ceased as her work with the women's student body grew. "I do hope before too long to make some sort of arrangement that will allow me to lecture again," she says, a determined glint in her clear grey-blue eyes.

WMS ALLOCATES $7,260,000 FOR YEAR'S WORK

TORONTO (CP)—The women's missionary society of the United Church of Canada estimated recently its 1957 budget at $7,260,000.

Treasurer Mrs. J. R. Seaman, presenting the estimates to the Dominion board meeting, allotted $550,000 for overseas missions, $380,000 for home missions and the balance for other purposes such as scholarships, administering, literature and grants to other boards with which the WMS co-operates.

Mrs. John McKillop of Toronto was re-elected Dominion president.

Housewives Form Female Defence Unit

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—When disaster, wartime or peacetime strikes nearby Wilmot Township, its residents will be ready.

Three busy housewives in nearby Baden during the last three weeks have organized Ontario's first female civil defence unit. The village population is 800.

Spearheading the move is Mrs. Caspar Fleet, the civic-minded wife of a Canadian National Railways section foreman. Mrs. Fleet, who wears her steel-grey hair in a mannish cut, is aided by Mrs. Frederick Belton, assistant director, and Mrs. Harris Veitch, director of the general committee.

Hundreds of telephone calls over Baden's ever-jammed party lines and an estimated 6,000 hours have gone into the organization of Wilmot Township's welfare service unit.

The corps intends to undertake emergency lodging, feeding, clothing, registration, social service and first-aid duties should disaster strike the area.

Ranging in age from 18 to 60, most of the 40 women in the unit are married.

"And we haven't had an objection from a husband yet," said Mrs. Fleet. "In fact, most of them have encouraged us to participate."

Jr. Auxiliary Presents Gift To Miss Woodrow

Highlight of the meeting of the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital was a presentation to Miss Lucie Woodrow, who retired last week after 19 years as director of nursing. On behalf of the auxiliary, Miss Barbara Bullock Webster presented Miss Woodrow with an electric frying pan and a corsage of white carnations. Final arrangements were made for the coffee party and flower display planned to be held in the nurses' home. It was announced that the picnic will be held June 25 at the home of Mrs. W. Fletcher at Ardmore. Miss Dianne Cox will convene the bazaar later in the year.

TV ADDICTS

BRADFORD, England (CP)—Magistrates granted a fish and chip shop owner a music and dancing licence, for a two-week trial period. He wanted to install a television set, so that customers could keep track of programs while waiting for their supper.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY The Baby Book
(MOTHER OF 3)

Along about 3 months, when baby's vision sharpens, glint and glitter toys are a joy for baby to behold. All manner of mobiles are fascinating. A couple of "cost nothing" kinds: tie bits of different colored paper, cut in various shapes, to a coat hanger and suspend over baby's bed. Or how about a silver baby spoon, brightly a-dangle from a shiny satin ribbon?

Terry trick. The unworn parts of old terry bath towels can be easily transformed into soakers. Better than wool, since they're cooler; stains wash out more easily; won't mat.

Smiles by the spoonful are usually in order when you serve Gerber Strained Bananas. For this delightful fruit has a delicious, true-banana flavor and delicate, true-banana color—plus a texture so smooth baby will adore it. Only fully ripe fruit (so important to digestibility) is used. Ripening is controlled so you are always assured of uniform ripeness.

Summer suggestions. Hot weather ahead? Don't be tempted to use cooler water for baby's sponge baths. Tepid water will leave him much more refreshed. Same idea goes for food. A shade warmer than room temperature is about right for tiny tikes.

Beauty bit. Why not snitch a few drops of baby's oil and splash 'em in your bath. Gives your skin a satin-y feeling. Nice scent, too.

For tiny tykes or active toddlers there's nothing like specially-prepared Gerber Vegetable Soup (Strained or Junior). Here's a well balanced blend of vitamin-rich, garden fresh vegetables—a savory, extra-smooth combination of carrots, potatoes, peas and tomatoes. Gerber Vegetable Soup, with its delicious true-to-nature flavor, is so good for baby—delights the appetite. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Fresh Strawberry Freeze Dessert Is Both Nutritious and Delicious

Here's a dessert we tried the other day, using premeasured packaged instant nonfat milk. The easy-to-use milk provides essential milk nutrients and costs as little as seven cents a quart.

STRAWBERRY FREEZE

One-half cup water, 3 table-spoons sugar, 1 cup sliced, fresh strawberries, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup instant nonfat dry milk powder.

Set refrigerator control at coldest point. Combine ½ cup water and 3 tablespoons sugar. Boil until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Cool. Combine water and lemon juice in deep 1-quart bowl. Sprinkle instant nonfat dry milk powder over surface of water. Beat with a rotary beater or electric mixer until stiff, about 8-10 minutes. Fold in strawberries. Pour into 1-quart refrigerator tray. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours. Note: If 1 package (10 oz.) frozen sliced berries, defrosted, is used, fold into whipped instant nonfat dry milk, omitting sugar. Makes 4-6 servings.

Delicious flavor of ripe strawberries is frozen into this delightful dessert. The recipe uses powdered milk.

One envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, separated; 3 cups liquefied instant nonfat dry milk. 1½ teaspoons vanilla extract.

Combine gelatin, ¼ cup of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Blend in egg yolks; slowly stir in liquefied instant nonfat dry milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats a spoon. Chill mixture over ice water, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Stir in vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually add remaining sugar. Beat until stiff. Fold into nonfat dry milk mixture. Spoon into 8 sherbet glasses. Chill until set, about 4 hours. To make a 2-layer Spanish cream: Do not chill nonfat dry milk mixture. Add vanilla and fold in beaten egg whites while nonfat dry milk mixture is still hot. Garnish with fresh strawberries. Makes 8 servings.

Select Vacation Wardrobe For Easy Washing, Drying

Whether it's a weekend trip or a whole vacation, travel and visiting can be made much easier if the wardrobe is carefully selected.

It's a wise idea to list in advance the items needed, planning around one or two basic colors so that bulky items like shoes and handbags can do multiple duty. Everything selected should be packable. Slim skirts are easier to pack than full ones. Concentrate on nylon and other synthetics. Knits are wrinkle-resistant.

Washable clothing, particularly items that dry quickly, make it possible to carry far fewer actual items. Freshness and cleanliness can be renewed at will.

Nylon tricot lingerie requires simple care. It goes through soap or detergent suds, is rinsed and will dry in about an hour, if blotted first.

Nylon, rayon and dacron blends, including more than 50 per cent of the synthetics can be washed with ease and will dry almost smooth.

Separates stretch a wardrobe. They can be interchanged and are easy to wash. Blouses, shirts and dresses of cotton knit are prominent this season. Or-lon sweaters pack in small space and dry rapidly. Knitwear washes in warm to hot sudsy water and is blotted before being spread flat to dry.

Laundry equipment for a vacation includes a featherweight ACDC steam iron. Also useful is a folding ironing board. Folding hangers, a hand-sized washboard, a plastic bag for soap or detergent and a yard or so of plastic sheeting are also helpful.

Thinking of making last summer's hat do for this year? Don't. If you're unhappy with the idea of a big, bulky hat, have one in a smaller version. You'll find the line both new and becoming.

The lady used to jam all of her clothes together in her closet. Then she found out they didn't last long. Now, she gives them air and space, hangs them up carefully and gets much more wear from them.

Plan this make-your-own salad to go with barbecued hamburgers. Line a large chop plate with crisp lettuce and in separate groups arrange whole or pitted ripe olives, tomato quarters, Calavo avocado crescents, sliced raw cauliflower sections, unpeeled cucumber fingers and green onions.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Plan Vacation That's Fun; Not Period of Strain

George Bernard Shaw wrote: "A perpetual holiday is a good working definition of hell."

I feel sure that you will get a laugh out of this when you look back at some of the vacations you have taken. If you had to keep up the routine you adhered to during those short two or three weeks you probably would knock yourself on the head.

Maybe you've had to put up with some of the following things: Over-stimulated, tired and fretful children, dashing through the prescribed quota of weary miles each day like a test pilot, mosquito and ant bitten, blistered heels from peeling skin, uncomfortable beds, sprained muscles, abscessed ears, cooking three meals a day for a family which is hungrier than usual because of the outdoor life, and without the conveniences of home, or sleep which is interrupted by crowing roosters or the sun in your eyes.

Or—dressing for dinner each night, becoming a part of a small group of strangers all of whom are trying to have fun but aren't, some of whom appeal to you and some who don't, carrying on the usual routine of the resort, staying up later than you want to and spending more money than you can afford.

It's all fun for a while but suppose you had to do it all of your life. Let us not bemoan the short vacation! Let's make the best of it one way or another, every man to his own choice.

Try to make your vacation this year one you can enjoy while you are taking it, not many weeks afterward. Think it over and choose carefully. There is real danger of over-doing on your vacation. Every year many people actually injure their health by strenuous physical exertion to which they are unaccustomed. Some actually die each year because of this. If you have led a sedentary life take it easy. You can't become an athlete in two weeks' time.

The sunshine is healthy but do not overdo that either, for the sake of beauty as well as health. Many women come back looking like zebras because their skin has blistered and is peeling. This is not healthy and it certainly defeats your hope for good looks into older years.

Try the combination of salmon, Spanish onion, ripe olives, tomato, sharp process cheese, Swiss cheese and cucumber in one of the sensational submarine sandwiches.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books? Then ask Andy. Andy, who is just a person, will answer two questions daily submitted by child readers of Canada and the U.S. Children who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive as prizes, for the main question, a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) beautifully bound with excellent color illustrations. Second award will either be a huge Hammond Globe, a Hammond World Atlas, or a Hammond Nature Atlas of North America.

Send your questions to "Ask Andy," c/o the Times, 2651 Douglas Street.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Frances Hudson, aged 10, of St. Albans, W. Va., for her question:

Is the Seal a Fish?

The seal at the circus can feed them on mother's milk. balance a ball on the end of his nose without letting it fall. And when he's finished his act he claps his flippers to start the applause. Now no fish could do such tricks. First, he couldn't breathe the air in the circus tent, or any air for that matter. He must breathe under water. Next, the fish wears scales. Mr. Seal, the old charmer, wears an excellent fur coat. Besides, a fish is not smart enough for such showmanship. So, the seal is not a fish.

Actually he belongs to the highest of all animal groups. He is a mammal, and a smart one. Millions of years ago, his ancestors were land animals. Maybe they were always fond of fish. Or maybe, long ago they decided that fish were more fun to catch than land animals. In any case, the remote ancestors of our charming seal left life on the land for life in the sea.

But they were warm-blooded, air-breathing mammals. They gave birth to live babies and fed them on mother's milk. They could stay under water only so long as they could hold a breath. They needed fur coats and layers of fat blubber to keep their bodies warm in icy waters. Flippers were more useful for swimming than legs. It took ages of time for the seal to develop into the expert swimmer he is.

There are various kinds of seals. The so-called true seals have no outer ears. They are very clumsy on land and tend to keep to the water as much as possible. Since their coats are tough and hairy, they are often called the haired seals. Our darling circus performer is one of the other seals, an eared seal. You can see his furry outer ears on either side of his sleek head. The eared seals wear coats of soft fur. They are not very graceful when it comes to walking on land, but they are far better at this than their hair-coated cousins.

All seals spend most of their lives on or in the water. But they must come up to breathe. Some can stay under for eight or nine minutes. When necessary, a certain seal that lives in the Arctic Ocean can stay under for 20 minutes. When the water freezes, he keeps himself a breathing hole in the ice. Sometimes a hungry Eskimo waits at the hole and grabs the seal when he pokes up his nose.

Seal babies are born on land. For the first few weeks, some are cradled in ice and snow.

Area Building Still Soaring

Construction booms continue to set new records in Greater Victoria municipalities, particularly Esquimalt, which has far exceeded its 1955 12-month building value in five months of 1956.

More than $100,000 worth of new construction than last year's total building figure has been rung up to the end of May, setting for Esquimalt a sum of $1,139,590 in new permits.

Building Inspector W. J. Edgington predicted in mid-May the total for the year could reach as much as an unprecedented $2,000,000. At that time new construction permits already totalled $1,073,830.

In Saanich 443 permits valued at $2,470,829 have been issued since Jan. 1, bettering the 482 permits worth $2,299,100 granted in the first five months of 1955.

And in Oak Bay, the total for May was higher than last year, but the figure for five months is lower by $20,400.

Esquimalt's rapid climb construction-wise is due partly to school and apartment house expansion, but largely can be traced to industrial and commercial building. A new warehouse district on Viewfield is presently having a $300,000 building erected. Yarrow's shipyard has added $150,000 worth of new construction.

In May, Saanich issued $426,535 worth of permits, compared with $670,475 last May for 134 permits—34 more than last month.

Apartment construction in Oak Bay, one worth $110,000 containing 18 suites, the other an $84,000, eight-suite block, account for the higher figure for May this year than last year.

Total for May is $402,424, for 33 permits, and for a year ago was $340,070 on 28 permits. A total 169 permits have been granted since Jan. 1, valued at $1,301,725, against 173 permits worth $1,322,178 last year at the end of May.

'Flying Cigar' Photographed In Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Newspapers here have published pictures purporting to show a giant "flying cigar" which a government employee and police are said to have seen in Argentina's Salta province. The object was estimated to be about 1,000 feet long, flying at tremendous speed, giving off silver rays and leaving a silver streak in the sky.

JOINT APPEAL UNDER STUDY

Victoria Red Cross president R. P. Alley and Community Chest president R. B. Wilson said Tuesday the two organizations have recently discussed united appeal for funds. But so far there has been no agreement.

Mr. Wilson said "... it will take a lot of study, both are willing to explore the possibilities."

National Red Cross recently announced participation in united appeal drives would be allowed for branches provided each branch retained its autonomy, set its own objective and budgets.

4,000 Year-Old Port of Semira Found After 100 Years Searching

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—A Syrian archeologist Tuesday reported the discovery of the 4,000-year-old seaport city of Semira, which has eluded excavation teams for a century.

Dr. Salim Abdel Abdulhak, head of the Syrian archeological department, predicted that the discovery in northern Syria will attract world-wide interest. He called Semira a "treasure mine of Phoenician, Aramean, Assyrian and Greek archeological finds which will throw light on so-far-unknown historical occurrences."

Syrian trade flowed through Semira

to the Mediterranean basin centuries before Christ, and Egyptian armies streamed through the port for their battles against the Hittites, who had an empire in Asia Minor which rivalled Babylon and Egypt at its peak.

Abdulhak said the ancient port city vanished under the earth at about the end of the Greek empire. American, French, British and Belgian expeditions failed to find it in a century of searching, he said, because they excavated along the coast.

The port city was located about three miles inland as protection against pirates, Abdulhak explained.

The cast includes Denise McCourt, Ruth Kinney, Bill Fahey, Cecily Shaw, Brian Jaundrew, Robert Marconi, Lorna Griffith, Ron MacKenzie and Tony Maynard.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — An army carrier pigeon based here quit on a mission Saturday because of rain.

The army said Tuesday that if the bird is ever found it will fly in an airplane to Fort Monmouth, N.J., for a refresher course.

Opera Pay Talks Collapse

NEW YORK (AP) — Contract talks between the Metropolitan Opera Co. and the American Guild of Musical Artists collapsed Tuesday night. A Met spokesman said the famed opera's 1956-57 season would be cancelled unless negotiations are resumed by midnight.

"There is no basis at the present time for the continuation of negotiations or for proceeding with plans for the season," said Anthony A. Bliss, president of the Metropolitan Opera Association.

Another Met spokesman set the deadline for talks to be resumed. Putting the next step up to the union, he said letters of dismissal would be mailed to the Met's performers if the AGMA does not request another meeting.

At issue is the AGMA's request for higher wages for its 220 members, including the chorus and ballet.

Slump Foreseen In Steel Output

MONTREAL (CP) — Production of steel in Canada was seen Monday as likely to fall off, rather than increase, with the summer.

Third-quarter allocations from Canadian mills were not as high as hoped and some losses in the first and second quarters were not made up. Big tonnages are reported still being diverted by the mills to large construction programs and other special projects currently under way.

'Cured' Drug Addict Reverts When Discouraged, Criticized

The reformed drug addict is liable to a relapse whenever he is subjected to discouragement, harsh treatment or reverses leading to a sense of failure.

"He knows that in heroin he found emotional values completely superior to any he had known before or since," says the report prepared by the four-man University of British Columbia team investigating drug addiction.

"Any discouragement, any failure, any pessimism immediately brings back into his memory the freedom from anxiety he formerly secured from heroin."

"Like the crying infant finds comfort at the mother's breast, like the small child finds security in the strong hand of a parent, the small child within the addict looks back to the comfort of his former drug—the answer to all his problems."

The addict's frustration tolerance is low and he becomes discouraged easily with the golden glow of his heroin-using days still alive in his memory.

"He is not easily satisfied with the things that give most people satisfaction, and his personality weakness and lack of training make it difficult for him to get these social values in a satisfying degree."

The team points out that alcoholic addicts have solved a large part of their problem through Alcoholics Anonymous, but as yet the drug addict does not have a sufficiently large group of non-using ex-addicts with whom to associate.

"Moreover because most of us use alcohol to some extent, the alcohol addict is not separated from most people by the same barrier as that which separates the addict from society."

"The heroin curtain in our society is almost as impenetrable as the iron curtain has been in international relations," the team said.

Full Search Pressed For Gabriola Man

NANAIMO — A full-scale search continued on Gabriola Island today for John Jenkins, 94, missing from his South Gabriola home since last Saturday when he failed to return from his usual evening walk.

Mr. Jenkins, 5 feet 10, weighing about 170, was last seen by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Morgan Jenkins Jr., about 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

RCMP were notified and combed the area surrounding the Jenkins home on the south end of Gabriola.

Const. J. A. Douglas of Nanaimo detachment organized a full-scale search for the man until dusk.

Search was resumed Sunday morning and continued throughout the day with practically every resident of the Island participating. Three RCMP officers and a police dog from Parksville continued the search Monday without success, but returned to the hunt today in company with a large number of island residents.

The missing man was in good health when last seen and described as an unusual figure with hazel eyes, aquiline nose, white hair and Van Dyke beard.

91 MILES OF IT

Submarine Cable Arrives June 25

The British cable ship Ocean Layer, bringing 91 miles of heavily-armored cable for the B.C. Electric's undersea power line from the mainland to the Island, is expected to reach here June 25.

Laying of the four-inch cable across the Strait of Georgia will start early in July, a B.C. Electric official said today.

If conditions are favorable the laying operation will take about three weeks and the line will go into service in September.

The cable was manufactured in one length by British Insulated Callenders Cables Ltd., at the Manchester plant, at a total cost of $6,000,000.

It was completed last month after a factory operation lasting nearly 18 months, and then loaded aboard the Ocean Layer for shipment to Vancouver via the Panama Canal.

The Ocean Layer will soon be a familiar sight in these waters as she piles slowly across the strait dropping cable into the sea.

The trim vessel was built in Germany and acquired by the British government as payment for German war debts.

Originally designed as a cargo ship, she was purchased by Submarine Cables Ltd. and sent to Pembroke Dock to be remodeled as one of the world's most modern cable ships.

The Ocean Layer is also equipped to locate and repair cables at sea. She is so modern that ship's officers have suites instead of cabins and on long voyages take their wives as passengers. There is automatic telephone communications with all parts of the ship.

Refrigerator space is provided for a three-month supply of food.

Four huge tanks in which the cable is coiled are capable of holding 2,000 miles, depending on its diameter. In addition there are holds for buoys used in marking and supporting the cable.

"Laying of the cable across the Strait of Georgia should be a comparatively straightforward operation," the B.C. Electric official said.

"But if any snags should develop the men aboard the Ocean Layer will know how to handle it."

SWEDISH PRINCE LATEST 'BEAU' FOR MARGARET

LONDON (UP) — Princess Margaret danced with old faithful escort Dominic Elliot until 3 in the morning at the U.S. ambassador's home today while a new rumor—barely more than a whisper—paired her name with Prince Bertil of Sweden. The Princess soon turns 26.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman gave a weary "no comment" to inquiries on the Bertil report which appeared in some London newspapers today.

Cypriot Bomb Threat Doubles Guard at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (Reuters)—The guard at United Nations headquarters was doubled today after an anonymous telephone call that the "Cyprus liberation movement" planned to plant a bomb there. A man telephoned the secretary that a bomb would be placed in the building this afternoon.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UP)—Four Cypriot gunmen shot and mortally wounded a British school teacher in the city of Limassol today in front of his horrified students.

The dying teacher, Thomas Milrea, pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot back but did not hit any of the gunmen.

The gunmen also shot and wounded a taxi driver before they escaped in broad daylight.

Dozens of students and shoppers dived for cover as shots zipped through the busy downtown street in front of the gate way to the school.

Milrea was the fifth British civilian killed by the anti-British underground in 14 months of violence. Two of the others also were slain in Limassol.

The Cypriot "execution squad" started shooting as the taxi pulled to the curb in front of the school.

The wounded taxi driver managed to drive the teacher to a nearby police station. Milrea died en route from there to a hospital after gasping a few words to detectives.

Peace Era Hailed By Bulganin

War Clouds Gone Says Soviet Chief

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia's Premier Bulganin today hailed an era of world peace with a Moscow radio statement explaining that Russia now is disarming because the threat of war has vanished.

"There is nowhere a possibility of war breaking out," the broadcast said.

Bulganin offered this as the explanation for Russia's recently announced intention to cut the Red army by 1,200,000 men without awaiting an international disarmament agreement.

"In Europe, Britain will not start a war, the French do not want it, the Germans cannot make it," he said.

"We hope that the Western powers will follow our example and do likewise. If clear indications of understanding are given and there is good will, the results will be positive."

NO PURPOSE

He recalled Russia's rejection of President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan to safeguard a disarmament agreement by means of Soviet air patrols over the United States and vice versa.

"We do not accept air inspection as a form of control because it is impossible to fly over territories as large as the Soviet Union and the United States—all over the world, in fact, since the United States have military bases everywhere."

Calgary Man Top Engineer On Highways

Fred T. Brown, 45, of Calgary, has been appointed chief engineer for the B.C. highways department, Highways Minister Gagliardi announced today.

"He will take over the post in two or three weeks' time," Mr. Gagliardi said.

Mr. Brown will fill the post vacated by Neil McCallum who resigned Jan. 31, stating he found working conditions "untenable."

Mr. Gagliardi said Mr. Brown was selected by the Civil Service Commission from 12 applicants. Only two applications were from within the highways department.

CHIEF ESTIMATOR

A graduate of the University of New Brunswick, Mr. Brown recently left Mannix Construction Ltd., where he served as chief estimator.

His previous appointments include chief construction engineer at Goose Bay for the Federal Department of Transport; construction and maintenance engineer for Imperial Oil Ltd. at Montreal; resident engineer for the Aluminum Company of Canada at Arvida, Quebec; structures engineer in charge of construction and contracts for the Toronto subway.

Covent Garden Opera House Threatened by Rising Debt

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Opera House at Covent Garden, the government-subsidized British scene of great triumphs by such Arts Council. In the past, the £100,000 deficit has been made up by razzini, Caruso and Melba, is in profits from successful tours of the Sadler's Wells ballet in Canada and the United States. But this method, the board concluded, could not be relied on permanently.

Lord Waverley, chairman of the Opera House board of directors, told a press conference Tuesday that if Britons want opera they'll have to pay for it.

Lord Waverley said that if the government did not come to its aid soon, the Opera House would have to close.

He blamed steadily rising costs for Covent Garden's present predicament. Just the same, the budget falls "far below" opera houses in France, Italy and Germany, he said.

SENATE BEGINS DEBATE ON PIPELINE MEASURE

OTTAWA (BUP)—The Senate gave the pipeline bill its first reading at a morning sitting, and this afternoon is debating second reading—the important approval-in-principle stage.

"There will be no fettering of debate in this House so far as I am concerned," Sen. W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Upper House, said in moving the first reading. The Senate rose until the afternoon to give its members a chance to study Trade Minister C. D. Howe's storm-tossed measure.

Canadians Win $800,000 in Irish

Two in Ontario, Montrealer Win First Prizes in Sweep

By The Canadian Press

Canadian holders of Irish hospital sweepstake tickets cashed in to the tune of a whopping $800,000 today on the nerve-tinged result of England's 177th Epsom Derby classic.

Three Canadians held tickets worth $140,000 each on the winner in a stirring photo-finish, the French-owned Lavandin.

They were D. Beaton of Toronto, John Moler of Weston, a Toronto suburb, and L. H. Fleming of Montreal.

An additional three hit the No. 2 jackpot in one of the year's richest payoff horse races. Tickets worth $56,000 were held on the runner-up, Montavala, by Colleen Martin, a Toronto office worker, who shared hers with her parents; S. Curtis of Edgar, Ont., and John "Miller" Parr of Moose Jaw, Sask.

FOUR GET $28,000

Four Canadians got the $28,000 third prizes that went with Roistar's finish in the gruelling 1½-mile race over Epsom's switchback course. They included Mrs. Irvin Weiner, 42-year-old mother of two and a part-time Vancouver saleswoman.

First, second and third-place winnings alone by Canadians totaled an even $700,000.

But 105 persons in Canada drew horses, and even those who wound up with horses that finished out of the money stood to collect $1,341 each.

Canada's share of the $300 secondary prizes that range down to 10 pounds sterling ($28), will boost her overall share of the $5,896,000 in prizes to about $800,000.

Four Victoria residents each won $1,341 consolation prizes on horses which ran out of the money. One of them, Mrs. O. Cave, 2347 McBride, had a ticket on fourth-place Hornbeam. Had her horse made that place, she would have got $28,000.

The other $1,341 winners were: Mrs. A. H. Hamilton, 1150 Woodstock; G. H. Norrie, Irish Linen Shop, and George Levkulich, 1471 Hamilton.

Scottish to Mark D-Day Invasion In Two Ceremonies

The allied invasion of Normandy, 12 years ago today, will be recalled at two ceremonies by officers and men of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

The killed regiment will perform retreat on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings tonight at 8.45.

A private ceremony by nine officers who served in the great landing will be performed at Vesuvius Bay later.

Taking part will be Brig. Cabell, Lieut.-Col. Cyril Wightman, Col. L. S. Henderson, Lieut.-Col. D. Crofton, Lieut.-Col. R. Lendrum, Lieut.-Col. E. English, Major T. MacEwan, Major E. A. Stewart and Major A. H. Plows.

House Adjourns Censure Debate

Dr. J. L. MacDougall, Vancouver, Victim of Heart Seizure Today

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. John Lorne MacDougall, 57, Liberal member of Parliament for Vancouver Burrard, died suddenly today.

As a mark of respect, the Commons immediately adjourned its debate on Opposition Leader George Drew's motion of censure against Mr. Speaker Rene Beaudoin.

Party associates said Dr. MacDougall succumbed in a washroom of Parliament's Centre Block, near his fifth-floor office, just after the Commons assembled for its sitting.

His death was believed due to a heart seizure.

Mr. MacDougall's wife was in the gallery of the House at the time. Friends brought her out.

The Vancouver member, first elected to the Commons in 1949, had complained of not feeling well during the last two days. He was present in the Commons for the last stages of the hectic pipeline debate until 3.20 a.m. today.

Stevenson Jubilant Over California Win

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Primary returns from California established Adlai E. Stevenson today as the man to beat for the Democratic presidential nomination. They virtually knocked Sen. Estes Kefauver out of the race.

Jubilant Stevenson supporters acclaimed their candidate's showing in this final, crucial presidential primary of 1956, as proof that he can carry on a fighting campaign to win back the White House for the Democrats.

But the bruising campaign between Stevenson and Kefauver in the 1956 primaries has scarred Stevenson's hopes of winning the nomination that was handed to him on a platter four years ago. He still faces a struggle to win it this year.

Incomplete returns from Tuesday's California vote showed Stevenson polling over 60 per cent of the Democratic vote.

He also was maintaining a slim lead over President Eisenhower, who was unopposed in the Republican presidential primary. However, the Democrats have 800,000 more registered voters in California than the Republicans and there was no contest comparable to the Stevenson-Kefauver race to turn out the GOP vote.

Already the front-runner in delegate strength, Stevenson gained 68 more national convention votes by his winner-take-all victory in California. The single contest gave him about 10 per cent of the 686½ he needs to win the nomination.

Kefauver picked up 24 more convention votes Tuesday in South Dakota and Montana, where he was unopposed in Democratic presidential primaries. Montana delegates will be chosen later but they are bound by the primary vote.

From the outset of the primary campaigns, the California contest was viewed as the showdown between Stevenson and Kefauver. It became even more crucial after Kefauver handed the favored Stevenson an almost disastrous defeat in Minnesota in March.

Kefauver conceded defeat in California about midnight, vowing to continue his fight for the nomination. But while he still may figure as a possible vice-presidential nominee, his chances of winning the big prize are now cut almost to zero.

How They Stand

WASHINGTON (UP) — Here is the United Press tabulation of first ballot votes—pledged or known preferences—at the Democratic national convention for the presidential nomination:

Adlai E. Stevenson	375
Estes Kefauver	164
Averell Harriman	126½
Stuart Symington	46
Lyndon B. Johnson	56
Frank J. Lausche	54
G. Mennen Williams	45
Others	41
Still to be chosen	226½
Total delegate votes	1,372
Necessary for nomination	686½

NANAIMO STUDENTS DISCIPLINED

NANAIMO—All but "one or two" of the 138 students suspended at Nanaimo High School for their part in demonstration against principal J. B. Leitch were at their classes today.

Printed forms to be signed by the students, and stating they would observe school regulations, had been sent to the parents of the students. They left their classes April 18 and refused to return unless granted a hearing by the school board.

The students were suspended Tuesday, and were told they could return to school only if they returned the forms properly signed.

Mightiest Amphibious Operation At Normandy 12 Years Ago Today

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A dozen years after the Normandy landing, the mightiest amphibious operation in history, many military men feel sure of one thing—mankind will never see another one like it.

The spectacle of massed navies, hundreds of converging ships, carrying scores of thousands of battle-clad soldiers. The sky swarmed and thundered with planes that came and went . . . and came and went again . . . and fire flamed and blood flowed on the beaches.

No one who was part of that day and is alive now can ever forget it, the feeling of unity combined from the joint-strivings of hundreds of thousands of men over weary months, all forged into one supreme purpose—to land and seize a few strips of sandy soil. But when it fails, it is and the pastures beyond. There was a terror and exultation in being part of it.

Just 12 years ago this morning, after being postponed 24 anxious hours because of bad weather, it happened. The English channel was speckled with hundreds upon hundreds of converging ships.

Today could such an operation succeed? Hardly. Assuming an enemy had the H-bomb, the massing of fleets to support a major landing would be suicidal. A few well-placed hell bombs would turn any beachhead into debris.

Further development of guided missiles with H-bomb warheads—one bomb hits, one city disappears—makes even the thought of another Normandy-landing-type operation seem quaint and old-fashioned and unnecessary.

The operation succeeded so well that 26 days later the Allied command had put ashore a million men, 566,648 tons of supplies and 171,532 vehicles. It had suffered 60,770 casualties—the attacker usually pays higher initially—and taken 41,000 prisoners, and the German doom began.

Today could such an operation succeed? Hardly. Assuming an enemy had the H-bomb, the massing of fleets to support a major landing would be suicidal. A few well-placed hell bombs would turn any beachhead into debris.

Further development of guided missiles with H-bomb warheads—one bomb hits, one city disappears—makes even the thought of another Normandy-landing-type operation seem quaint and old-fashioned and unnecessary.

For better or for worse, the art of warfare has progressed so fast that today the whole earth is a potential beachhead.

By PETE LOUDON

A jumble of overlapping health services in Greater Victoria results in Victoria and Esquimalt shouldering costs run up by their Oak Bay and Saanich neighbors.

Victoria-Esquimalt health board, headed by chairman Coun. G. K. Sammon, is angling now toward formation of a three-way union, including Saanich. The present union board says Oak Bay will eventually have to come into union too, to make everything come out even. Either that or there will have to be a charge for service to persons outside the municipal union.

For years, with a desire to improve health generally, nurses, doctors and sanitation workers have blithely been crossing municipal borders in response to requests from a public who apparently doesn't know or care which of the currently duplicate health services administrators which area.

As a result financing became jumbled.

For instance, it's almost summer and many will go abroad. There is a travellers' immunization clinic at Victoria's Cook Street health centre. Based on last year's experience, eight per cent of the anti-disease injections will be made into Oak Bay arms. Ten per cent will be given Saanich residents.

This "needles" Victoria-Esquimalt civic budgeters because literally they are paying for the shot.

Another instance—almost all Greater Victoria restaurants are located in Victoria; same applies to food packers and cold storage plants. All of the produce, much of it eaten by Saanich and Oak Bay residents, is subject to scrutiny and sanitary regulation imposed by inspections, whose wages and expenses are paid by Victoria and Esquimalt.

There are inequalities, too, in service depending upon which district one lives in. Johnny goes to school in Oak Bay and is medically examined every year. Tom, Jim and Bill are schooled in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. They are examined physically only in grades one, seven and 10.

In Victoria-Esquimalt there is a doctor present at all well-baby clinics. In Saanich and Oak Bay no doctor attends. As Victoria-Esquimalt has the better-known service and out-of-town motorists are probably going to town anyway, attendance at the clinic on Cook Street is usually 10 per cent from Saanich and 15 per cent from Oak Bay.

Once again, Victoria-Esquimalt taxpayers bear the cost.

The confusion reaches a new height at Lansdowne Junior High School in Saanich, where two-thirds of the students reside either in Oak Bay or Victoria. Saanich provides the school health service.

But, home visiting, communicable disease control, are responsibility of the municipality where the child lives.

At present there are grave differences in health protective services. Saanich has one medical health officer for 45,000 persons; Victoria-Esquimalt plans soon to have two, one for each 31,000 of population. Oak Bay has a part-time MHO.

Victoria-Esquimalt has a public health nurse for each 6,100 persons. Oak Bay has one for each 8,400.

Saanich has one sanitary inspector for each 24,000 persons while Victoria-Esquimalt has one for each 10,000. Oak Bay has none.

With savings involved through ending duplication of records and services, most authorities agree, the wider program could be applied to all Greater Victoria at no more cost than at present.

POKHARA, Nepal (Reuters)—

Two of the men who conquered the ninth highest mountain in the world, 26,656-foot Mount Manaslu in the Himalayas, described here today what they did when they reached the summit. "We bowed in worship there and thanked Almighty God for giving us success," said Shio Imanishi, a Japanese climber who made the initial assault May 9 with his Sherpa porter, Gyalzen. In 90 minutes on the summit, a pointed peak too narrow to hold them both, they took turns taking photographs and drank fruit juice and tea.

Island Schools Overflow; Basements Must Be Used

DUNCAN—Basement rooms will be used to accommodate an additional 210 students who will attend Cowichan High School and Duncan, Cobble Hill, Shawnigan and new Somers elementary schools in the fall.

A. McLehman, school inspector, told the District 65 school board Cowichan High will see the largest influx. Built for 750 and now accommodating 930, it must cope with 100 additional students in the fall.

Opening of the new South Cowichan Junior High near Cobble Hill in January will ease the pressure considerably. Until then basement rooms at Cobble Hill and Duncan schools, and additional space at Sylvan school, will be refurbished and put to use.

Mr. McLehman said three new teachers will be needed at Duncan elementary, and one each at Shawnigan, Glenora and Sahtlam.

UNUSUAL PICTURE of mother hummingbird on nest was taken on Old

RARE HUMMINGBIRD PICTURES SHOW LITTLE MOTHER NESTING

Selasphorus rufus, which objects to everything except flowers and other selasphorus rufus, had her picture taken Tuesday.

She's a hummingbird, currently a guest of H. W. Armitage, 4973 Old West Road.

Times photographer Bill Halkett stealthily approached the tiny nest, paused briefly, and the fine pictures adjoining resulted.

He was about 10 feet away from bird and nest.

There was no sign of the male hummingbird. Ornithologists are still puzzled where the male birds go when mother is nesting. They just take off, ostensibly to follow the blooming flowers elsewhere.

There was no indication the bird was at all frightened by the flash of the camera.

In fact, hummingbirds are not frightened by anything. People who know birds say if hummingbirds were the size of cows, they'd have to be machine-gunned immediately or cause riotous havoc everywhere.

The type here is common to B.C. and Alaska. The nest is a solidly-built little cup of feathery down, plant fibres and spider webs, sometimes decorated with lichens.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

In yesterday's discourse on my losing war with the telephone, I neglected to mention one of the great difficulties. When I talk on the telephone, people on the other end rarely catch the full import of my words.

Or, to put it more simply, they don't know what I am talking about.

Like so many people in this day and age, I am inclined to be lip lazy. If I phone Lyle the butcher and ask for a roast of beef, he is apt to send me a rutabaga.

But lip laziness is not the whole reason for difficulties of communication via the telephone. In fact, human beings have difficulty communicating with each other under any circumstance.

The reason was explained recently by a university professor who stepped before his senior class in modern languages, took a deep breath, and said:

Crash! Water larder warts sunned lack itch udder! Effervescent further deferent saturations an witch way harem, wade heifer haliver tam sang witch worse witch.

Not only did the class agree, but one of the more jelly gel furloughs, who also happened to be a chair-later, jumped up to lead the group in one of the most popular campus songs. Everyone joined in on:

"Alley wetter, jaunty alley wetter,
Alley wetter, shutter plumber ray.
Shutter plumber raller tat
Shutter plumber raller tat
Ale a tat, ale a tat
Ale a tat, ale a tat
O,
Alley wetter, jaunty alley wetter,
Alley wetter, shutter plumber ray.

Pleased with this spontaneous display, and remembering his mother's advice that dolly board cashes or warm, the professor dismissed the class until next week.

I since nearly thrust I make myself near.

FELINE FIREWORKS

Park Men Deny Cat-Trapping Accusation

Family cats have been disappearing in vicinity of Beacon Hill Park and a complaint to the city today suggested they were being trapped by parks authorities.

Parks officials denied the charge. They said they hadn't trapped a cat in two years, but warned they would if game birds began disappearing again.

Complaint came from Mrs. H. M. Kerswell, secretary for the Cats Protection League Inc. She said her organization wanted the practice stopped.

Committee was told abandoned cats and 'coons had taken all the city's ornamental pheasants, wood ducks and mandarin ducks and parks officials would recommend no change in policy to trap cats when trouble of that nature occurs.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren said box traps baited with meat are used, which do not injure the marauding animals. Once caught a cat is turned over to the pound for disposal.

He said if cats were tagged by owners his department would consider returning them if damages were paid and assurance given the cat would not be allowed to prow the park.

Ald. Robert Macmillan, chairman of parks, said he has had at least six letters similar to the one from Mrs. Kerswell.

It was suggested by parks authorities that perhaps other residents in the area are trapping cats.

Soldier Faces Assault Count After Fight

Cpl. Arnold Harry Hazell, Camp Gordon Head, was remanded in Saanich police court today to appear Thursday at 2 p.m. on a charge of assault causing bodily harm to fellow soldier Rfn Felop Wyszinski.

Police arrested Hazell Tuesday afternoon at the army camp after hearing details of a fight which occurred at the camp early Sunday after a downtown drinking session.

Wyszinski is in HMCS Naden hospital on the "seriously ill list," but is making good progress," according to authorities.

He was reported to have a fractured jaw, shattered teeth and cuts.

A group of soldiers accompanying Wyszinski took him to Camp Gordon Head medical officer after the fight and he was transferred to Naden hospital when the seriousness of his injuries was determined.

Army authorities would not comment.

In another incident, Richard Jukild, 829 Bay, was found by police "badly beaten" and lying on a downtown Blanshard Street boulevard at 7:20 p.m. Tuesday.

He told police his assailant was known to him but he would not lay a charge.

Police took him to Jubilee Hospital with a broken nose, facial cuts and lacerated right eye. He was treated and detained overnight.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—I have an old stone ginger beer bottle bearing the name Thorpe and Co., Ltd., Victoria, with the trade mark a gauntlet or glove. Will you tell me when they were in business in this city?—S.K.

A.—The name of the firm first appeared in the city directory in 1893. It was not found in the directory after 1924. The beverages produced and marketed by the company were widely and favorably known along this coast.

Q.—What is the history of the expression to "throw down the gauntlet"?—S.S.

A.—The Oxford English Dictionary defines gauntlet in its original use as a glove worn as part of medieval armor, usually made of leather covered with plates of steel. In medieval jousting to throw down a gauntlet was to give a challenge. To take up the gauntlet was to accept the challenge.

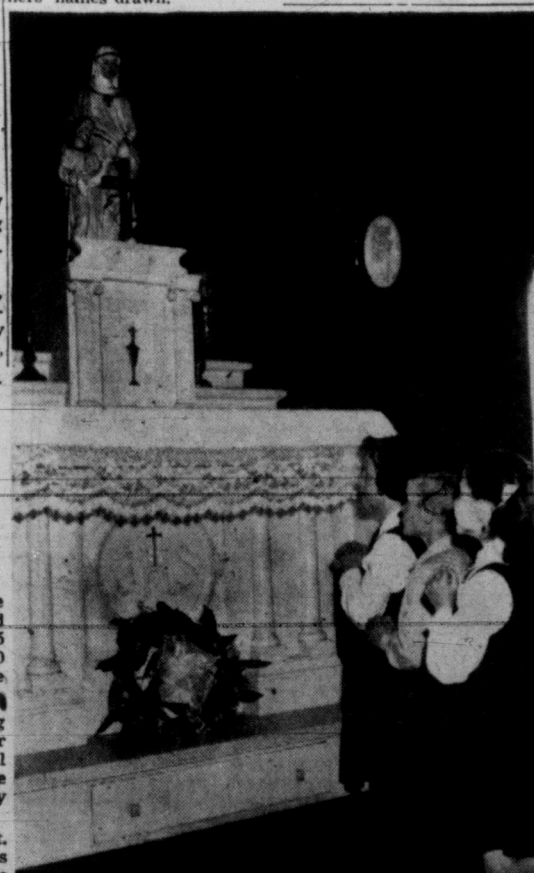

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

'LITTLE HOUSE, SO SMALL' Original Convent Marks 98th Year

Little house, so small and old, Cherished memories thou dost hold

Speak, oh little house today Of those times long passed away.

Fill the eager heart of youth With their tenderness and truth.

These few words are inscribed on an hand-illuminated plaque in the original St. Ann's School, still standing here on Heywood Avenue, built in 1858.

Tuesday marked the 98th anniversary of the structure and the year the first Sisters of St. Ann arrived here.

PRAYERS

The nuns and students of St. Ann's Academy marked the occasion with special prayers and processions.

The first pupil was the same year the sisters arrived, and within six months they had 35 pupils. Today they teach 550 students here, 40 of whom live in at the academy.

The sisters are now planning their centenary celebrations for 1958, at which time the original convent and school may be moved closer to the academy itself, across the road.

From the log cabin grew St. Joseph's Hospital, as well as Mount St. Mary's, home for the aged and chronically ill. St. Joseph's was built 17 years after the sisters arrived on the Island. They spread to Alaska, the Yukon and other parts of B.C. and now have 27 "houses" which take care of schools and hospitals.

SHOPPING GUIDE

By PENNY SAVER

Father's Day isn't far off and if there is any time during the year when fathers are a definite problem—this is it. For some it's difficult to think of appropriate gifts because he seems to have nearly everything he needs, or at least prefers to buy his own clothes and gadgets. On the other hand, some fathers never seem to buy themselves anything, so that when Father's Day comes around you don't know where to begin to buy needed items. Yes, a problem it is, but I've found something that I'm sure will bring a sparkle to the eyes of any man.

It's a razor. I keep wanting to call it an electric razor, but that's not what it is at all. German made, these slick machines have a plastic coiled cord that protrudes at one side. Give this cord several sharp and full pulls, and a motor is in full action.

The friction action of the mechanism makes it rotate in your hand, and can be easily revved up with a few pulls on the cord, at the end of which is a soft cleaning brush for the motor. No electricity, no plugging into car lighter sockets, and no worries about batteries conking out. They come in foam-filled cases that look like leather and have all-around zippers. For travelling, these razors are just wonderful.

When a man buys a razor, one of his first questions deals with the servicing and replacement of parts. Even though this is foreign-made, the parts are inexpensive and obtainable right in town. It can be serviced or repaired without having to be sent out of town. A plastic cap protects the rotary action razor head. It's yours for $21.95. He'd love it.

Beach sandals for men or women make romping or relaxing on the beach much more enjoyable, for tender soles are protected from bits of broken glass or from very hot sand.

Adjustable, they're scuff-type sandals, with a top buckle to assure that they stay on. The plastic is sturdy, so that they will take a lot of wear and can be easily cleaned with a damp cloth. Indestructible, they won't tear. They come in a shiny bronze or white, and cost 79 cents a pair.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find the razor, sandals, or any items mentioned here in the corner during past weeks.

AS WE LIVE

Let Mother-in-Law
Live in Your Home

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

There is nothing, with the exception of "another woman," that can wreck a home more quickly than financial troubles. That is why a wife should try to avoid them in any way she can.

(Q)—"In the past year, my husband has had to help support his mother. She is in poor health and cannot work as she used to. She has a small pension from her husband but it is not enough to cover her expenses. My husband seems to begrudge me every cent I spend, even for food. I simply wouldn't dare to buy new clothes. We have no children and I have offered to go back to work as I worked before I was married and made enough to support myself very nicely. But, he won't hear of it. He claims it would look as if he couldn't support me, and he is always trying to put on a good front before others. Things are getting so tense at home I am afraid it will wreck our marriage. What would you advise me to do?"—L. W.

(A)—I would advise you to do anything you can to relieve the tension that comes with financial worries. Otherwise, you are likely to find your marriage will go on the rocks. Once antagonisms grow up, as they seem to be doing in your home now, they often persist, even after the financial worries are over.

There are several suggestions I can offer about relieving the financial strain. See if any of them will meet your problems and, if so, apply them at once. The first is to practice even stricter economies than you have done. You will be surprised to find how much you can save if you watch for sales and buy in quantities.

The second thing is to bring your mother-in-law to live with you. This is not too desirable, but it certainly will save money to eliminate an extra overhead expense. Even if it means turning your living room into a bedroom for her, you can explain this to outsiders by saying she should not be living alone.

If your husband does not want you to go out to work, suggest that he get extra work over weekends and in the evenings. If you take care of his mother, he can carry an extra burden by doing extra jobs.

French Twist Hairdo Flattering
Goes With Season's Large Hats

Much curiosity has been expressed about the French twist hair style. Many women claim they have never seen what it looks like, while others have seen it, but don't know how it's done. Still others want to know if this style is for them.

The French twist is a roll of hair that goes up the back of the head. It is worn with smooth sides and either bangs or a slicked-back brow. It goes well under platter or dishpan hats and is therefore seen around quite a bit this season. It is a cool style and a very sophisticated one.

The chief stylist for a national chain reports that women with heads of all shapes request this style. He finds, however, that women with full faces and short necks get special benefit from wearing the style. When it is used for a thinner-faced woman, it is done with a fringe over the forehead and curls at the ears.

The French twist can be done with any long hair and, by an expert, with hair as short as three and a half inches.

It is, generally speaking, a job to be done by an expert.

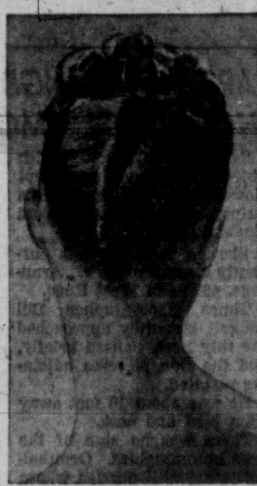

Ruel, chief stylist for Coiffures Americana, showed us how it was done. According to him, a woman who is not a violent sleeper can leave the style intact from salon visit to salon visit.

However, ability at reading directions, a double mirror and practice may enable women to do it at home between visits.

The hair is divided into four portions. First, part down the centre all the way to the nape of the neck, to halve the hair. Then part from the crown, down each side to behind the ear. The twist is done with the two back quarters.

The right back section is then brushed over to the centre of the back, rolled over the thumb and pinned down with hairpins, working from top to bottom. The other back section is done the same way, only it's pinned on top of the first roll. The sides are then smoothed back and blended in with hairpins.

The whole trick is doing it smoothly and tightly. And this is no mean trick. Women who want to try this style had better let themselves to the nearest professional salon.

Sophisticated and cool, the French twist hair style is in great vogue this season. Much of the popularity is due to Grace Kelly. This version has curls on the crown and a waved fringe over the forehead.

Area Building Still Soaring

Construction booms continue to set new records in Greater Victoria municipalities, particularly Esquimalt, which has far exceeded its 1955 12-month building value in five months of 1956.

More than $100,000 worth of new construction than last year's total building figure has been rung up to the end of May, setting for Esquimalt a sum of $1,139,590 in new permits.

Building Inspector W. J. Edgington predicted in mid-May the total for the year could reach as much as an unprecedented $2,000,000. At that time new construction permits already totalled $1,073,830.

In Saanich 443 permits valued at $2,470,829 have been issued since Jan. 1, bettering the 482 permits worth $2,299,100 granted in the first five months of 1955.

And in Oak Bay, the total for May was higher than last year, but the figure for five months is lower by $20,400.

Esquimalt's rapid climb construction-wise is due partly to school and apartment house expansion, but largely can be traced to industrial and commercial building. A new warehouse district on Viewfield is presently having a $300,000 building erected. Yarrow's shipyard has added $150,000 worth of new construction.

In May, Saanich issued $426,835 worth of permits, compared with $670,475 last May for 134 permits—34 more than last month.

Apartment construction in Oak Bay, one worth $110,000 containing 18 suites, the other an $84,000, eight-suite block, account for the higher figure for May this year than last year. Total for May is $492,424, for 33 permits, and for a year ago was $340,070 on 28 permits. A total 169 permits have been granted since Jan. 1, valued at $1,301,735, against 173 permits worth $1,322,178 last year at the end of May.

JOINT APPEAL UNDER STUDY

Victoria Red Cross president B. P. Alley and Community Chest president R. B. Wilson said Tuesday the two organizations have recently discussed united appeal for funds. But so far there has been no agreement.

Mr. Wilson said "... it will take a lot of study, both are willing to explore the possibilities."

National Red Cross recently announced participation in united appeal drives would be allowed for branches provided each branch retained its autonomy, set its own objective and budgets.

4,000 Year-Old Port of Semira Found After 100 Years Searching

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—A Syrian archeologist Tuesday reported the discovery of the 4,000-year-old seaport city of Semira, which has eluded excavation teams for a century.

Dr. Salim Abdel Abdulkhak, head of the Syrian archeological department, predicted that the discovery in northern Syria will attract world-wide interest. He called Semira a "treasure mine of Phoenician, Aramean, Assyrian and Greek archeological finds which will throw light on so-far-unknown historical occurrences."

Syrian trade flowed through Semira

to the Mediterranean basin centuries before Christ, and Egyptian armies streamed through the port for their battles against the Hittites, who had an empire in Asia Minor which rivalled Babylon and Egypt at its peak.

Abdulkhak said the ancient port city vanished under the earth at about the end of the Greek empire. American, French, British and Belgian expeditions failed to find it in a century of searching, he said, because they excavated along the coast.

The port city was located about three miles inland as protection against pirates, Abdulkhak explained.

SENATE BEGINS DEBATE ON PIPELINE MEASURE

OTTAWA (RUP)—The Senate gave the pipeline bill its first reading at a morning sitting, and this afternoon is debating second reading—the important approval-in-principle stage.

"There will be no fettering of debate in this House so far as I am concerned," Sen. W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Upper House, said in moving the first reading. The Senate rose until the afternoon to give its members a chance to study Trade Minister C. D. Howe's storm-tossed measure.

Canadians Pocket $800,000

Three Winners In Irish Sweep

By The Canadian Press
Canadian holders of Irish hospital sweepstake tickets cashed in to the tune of a whopping $800,000 today on the nerve-tinged result of England's 177th Epsom Derby classic.

Three Canadians held tickets worth $140,000 each on the winner in a stirring photo-finish, the French-owned Lavandin.

They were D. Beaton of Toronto, John Moler of Weston, a Toronto suburb, and L. H. Fleming of Montreal.

An additional three hit the No. 2 jackpot in one of the year's richest payoff horse races. Tickets worth $56,000 were held on the runner-up, Montavala, by Colleen Martin, a Toronto office worker, who shared hers with her parents; S. Curtis of Edgar, Ont., and John "Miller" Parr of Moose Jaw, Sask.

FOUR GET $28,000
Four Canadians got the $28,000 third prize that went with Roistar's finish in the gruelling 1½-mile race over Epsom's switchback course. They included Mrs. Irvin Weiner, 42-year-old mother of two and a part-time Vancouver saleswoman.

First, second and third-place winnings alone by Canadians totaled an even $700,000.

Cypriot Bomb Threat Doubles Guard at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (Reuters)—The guard at United Nations headquarters was doubled today after an anonymous telephone call that the "Cyprus liberation movement" planned to plant a bomb there.

A man telephoned the secretariat that a bomb would be placed in the building this afternoon.

The dying teacher, Thomas Milrea, pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot but did not hit any of the gunmen.

The gunmen also shot and wounded a taxi driver before they escaped in broad daylight. Dozens of students and shoppers dived for cover as shots zipped through the busy downtown street in front of the gateway to the school.

Milrea was the fifth British civilian killed by the anti-British underground in 14 months of violence. Two of the others also were slain in Limassol.

B.C. Member Dies After Collapse; Commons Adjourns

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. John Lorne MacDougall, 57, Liberal member of Parliament for Vancouver Burrard, died suddenly today.

As a mark of respect, the Commons immediately adjourned its debate on Opposition Leader George Drew's motion of censure against Mr. Speaker Rene Beaudoin.

Party associates said Dr. MacDougall succumbed in a washroom of Parliament's Centre Block, near his fifth-floor office, just after the Commons assembled for its sitting.

His death was believed due to a heart seizure.

Mr. MacDougall's wife was in the gallery of the House at the time. Friends brought her out.

The Vancouver member, first elected to the Commons in 1949, had complained of not feeling well during the last two days. He was present in the Commons for the last stages of the hectic pipeline debate until 3.20 a.m. today.

PARTY ORGANIZER
A native of Tiverton, Ont., Dr. MacDougall was a dental surgeon graduate of the University of Toronto. He was forced to leave his practice due to disabilities suffered in being wounded three times during the First World War.

At one time he was chief organizer of the British Columbia Liberal Association and first ran for a federal seat in 1935 but was defeated. He was successful in the general election of 1949 and was re-elected at the general election of 1953.

His voice breaking, Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons of the "very tragic" death of "our esteemed and beloved colleague."

John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert), who was speaking in the censure debate at the time, said he knew Dr. MacDougall 40 years ago, in the 19th Battalion.

"I knew him through those years . . ." Mr. Diefenbaker said. He could go no further and sat down.

Then he finally managed to choke out: "I move the ad-

Era of World Peace Hailed by Bulganin

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia's Premier Bulganin today hailed an era of world peace with a Moscow radio statement explaining that Russia now is disarming because the threat of war has vanished.

"There is nowhere a possibility of war breaking out," the broadcast said.

Bulganin offered this as the explanation for Russia's recently announced intention to cut the Red army by 1,200,000 men without awaiting an international disarmament agreement.

"In Europe, Britain will not start a war, the French do not want it, the Germans cannot make it," he said.

"We hope that the Western powers will follow our example and do likewise. If clear indications of understanding are given and there is good will, the result will be positive."

NO PURPOSE

He recalled Russia's rejection of President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan to safeguard a disarmament agreement by means of Soviet air patrols over the United States and vice versa.

"We do not accept air inspection as a form of control because it is impossible to fly over territories as large as the Soviet Union and the United States—all over the world, in fact, since the United States have military bases everywhere."

When the years and days were called on two of the final four votes. Speaker Rene Beaudoin found that the Conservative-CCF opposition had shouted their stand the louder. The Liberals had to

Stevenson Jubilant Over California Win

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Primary returns from California established Adlai E. Stevenson today as the man to beat for the Democratic presidential nomination. They virtually knocked Sen. Estes Kefauver out of the race.

Jubilant Stevenson supporters acclaimed their candidate's showing in this final, crucial presidential primary of 1956, as proof that he can carry on a fighting campaign to win back the White House for the Democrats.

But the bruising campaign between Stevenson and Kefauver in the 1956 primaries has scarred Stevenson's hopes of winning the nomination that was handed to him on a platter four years ago. He still faces a struggle to win it this year.

Incomplete returns from Tuesday's California vote showed Stevenson polling over 60 per cent of the Democratic vote.

He also was maintaining a slim lead over President Eisenhower, who was unopposed in the Republican presidential primary. However, the Democrats have 800,000 more registered voters in California than the Republicans and there was no contest comparable to the Stevenson-Kefauver race to turn out the GOP vote.

Already the front-runner in delegate strength, Stevenson gained 68 more national convention votes by his winner-take-all victory in California. The single contest gave him about 10 per cent of the 686½ he needs to win the nomination.

Kefauver picked up 24 more convention votes Tuesday in South Dakota and Montana, where he was unopposed in Democratic presidential primaries. Montana delegates will be chosen later but they are bound by the primary vote.

From the outset of the primary campaigns, the California contest was viewed as the showdown between Stevenson and Kefauver. It became even more crucial after Kefauver handed the favored Stevenson an almost disastrous defeat in Minnesota in March.

Kefauver conceded defeat in California about midnight, vowing to continue his fight for the nomination. But while he still may figure as a possible vice-presidential nominee, his chances of winning the big prize are now cut almost to zero.

How They Stand

WASHINGTON (UP) — Here is the United Press tabulation of first ballot votes—pledged or known preferences—at the Democratic national convention for the presidential nomination:

Adlai E. Stevenson	375
Estes Kefauver	164
Averell Harriman	126½
Stuart Symington	46
Lyndon B. Johnson	56
Frank J. Lausche	54
G. Mennen Williams	45
Others	41
Unknown	226½
Still to be chosen	238
Total delegate votes	1,372
Necessary for nomination	686½

NANAIMO STUDENTS DISCIPLINED

NANAIMO—All but "one or two" of the 138 students suspended at Nanaimo High School for their part in demonstration against principal J. B. Leitch were at their classes today.

Printed forms to be signed by the students, and stating they would observe school regulations, had been sent to the parents of the students. They left their classes April 18 and refused to return unless granted a hearing by the school board.

The students were suspended Tuesday, and were told they could return to school only if they returned the forms properly signed.

Mightiest Amphibious Operation At Normandy 12 Years Ago Today

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A dozen years after the Normandy landing, the mightiest amphibious operation in history, many military men feel sure of one thing—mankind will never see another one like it.

The spectacle of massed navies, bombarding a foreign shore as they unleash thousands of attacking troops, is probably a thing of the past. It is almost as outmoded as a clash between knights on horseback.

The amphibious operation is one of the oldest forms of war. It is also one of the most imaginative and difficult of manoeuvres to execute. It is always a titanic gamble, made perilous by hidden reefs and the whims of wind and weather.

When an amphibious operation succeeds, it often succeeds brilliantly. But when it fails, it is often an irretrievable disaster.

The Normandy landing will perhaps go down in the textbooks as the classic example of a successful amphibious operation.

Just 12 years ago this morning, after being postponed 24 anxious hours because of bad weather, it happened. The English channel was speckled with hundreds upon hundreds of converging ships carrying scores of thousands of battle-clad soldiers. The sky swarmed and thundered with planes that came and went . . . and fire flamed and blood flowed on the beaches.

No one who was part of that day and is alive now can ever forget it, the feeling of unity combined from the joint strivings of hundreds of thousands of men over weary months, all forged into one supreme purpose—to land and seize a few strips of sandy soil and the pastures beyond. There was a terror and exultation in being part of it.

The operation succeeded so well that 26 days later the Allied command had put ashore a million men, 596,648 tons of supplies and 171,532 vehicles. It had suffered 60,770 casualties—the attacker usually pays higher initially—and taken 41,000 prisoners, and the German doom began.

Today could such an operation succeed? Hardly. Assuming an enemy had the H-bomb, the massing of fleets to support a major landing would be suicidal. A few well-placed hell bombs would turn any massed navy into debris.

Further development of guided missiles with H-bomb warheads—one bomb hits, one city disappears—makes even the thought of another Normandy-landing-type operation seem quaint and old-fashioned and unnecessary.

For better or for worse, the art of warfare has progressed so fast that today the whole earth is a potential beachhead.

Covent Garden Opera House Threatened by Rising Debt

LONDON (Reuters)—The Royal Opera House at Covent Garden, scene of great triumphs by such operatic immortals as Patti, Tetrazini, Caruso and Melba, is in danger of closing its doors.

The illustrious home of the Sadler's Wells Ballet is losing money at the rate of £100,000 a year and now is £140,000 in the red.

Lord Waverley, chairman of the Opera House board of directors, told a press conference Tuesday that if Britons want opera they'll have to pay for it.

Lord Waverley said that if the government did not come to its aid soon, the Opera House would have to close.

He blamed steadily rising costs for Covent Garden's present predicament. Just the same, the budget falls "far below" opera houses in France, Italy and Germany, he said.

The Royal Opera House receives a yearly subsidy of £250,000 from the government-supported British Arts Council. In the past, the £100,000 deficit has been made up by profits from successful tours of the Sadler's Wells ballet in Canada and the United States. But this method, the board concluded, could not be relied on permanently.

SWEDISH PRINCE LATEST 'BEAU' FOR MARGARET

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret danced with old faithful escort Dominic Elliot until 3 in the morning at the U.S. ambassador's home today while a new rumor—barely more than a whisper—paired her name with Prince Bertil of Sweden. The Princess soon turns 26.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman gave a weary "no comment" to inquiries on the Bertil report which appeared in some London newspapers today.

Calgary Man Top Engineer On Highways

Fred T. Brown, 45, of Calgary, has been appointed chief engineer for the B.C. highways department, Highways Minister Gaillard announced today.

"He will take over the post in two or three weeks' time," Mr. Gaillard said.

Mr. Brown will fill the post vacated by Neil McCallum who resigned Jan. 31, stating he found working conditions "untenable."

Mr. Gaillard said Mr. Brown was selected by the Civil Service Commission from 12 applicants. Only two applications were from within the highways department.

CHIEF ESTIMATOR

The position is worth $10,800 a year plus $2,400 for the chief engineer's membership on the Highways Board which details construction plans.

A graduate of the University of New Brunswick, Mr. Brown recently left Mannix Construction Ltd. where he served as chief estimator.

His previous appointments include chief construction engineer at Goose Bay for the Federal Department of Transport; construction and maintenance engineer for Imperial Oil Ltd. at Montreal; resident engineer for the Aluminum Company of Canada at Arvida, Quebec; structures engineer in charge of construction and contracts for the Toronto subway.

Tories Rebuff PM's Plea On Censure

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today appealed to Opposition leader Drew in the Commons to withdraw his censure motion against Speaker Rene Beaudoin.

There was no immediate reply from Mr. Drew though it was indicated the Progressive Conservatives would carry the motion to a vote.

The Commons came after starting today's sitting. The prime minister spoke briefly and then John Diefenbaker, Prince Albert, started to speak for the Conservatives.

In his speech—which was interrupted by announcement of Dr. J. Lorne MacDougall's death and the immediate adjournment of the House—Mr. Diefenbaker also called for the resignation of deputy speaker W. A. Robinson, whose conduct as chairman of the Commons committee of the whole when the pipeline bill was under study had been sharply attacked by the opposition.

WATER PIPES FREEZE IN JUNE—IN ALBERTA

INNISFAIL, Alta. (CP)—Several blocks of buildings in the downtown district of this central Alberta town, 70 miles north of Calgary, were without water for most of the day.

The reason: Frozen water pipes—in June.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
DETROIT (AP)—Some 30 stricken humans have been given vaccines made from their own cancers, a Boston physician has disclosed.

It is too early to tell whether they benefited. But there are signs that they did.

Each vaccine was prepared from bits of each person's own cancer, and then injected under the skin of that same person. The aim was to increase natural resistance to far-advanced cancer.

It could work by forming antibodies against the cancer, and by increasing the number of healthy defensive cells resisting its spread.

FINDS APPARENT REASON

X-rays to kill cancer cells are given soon afterward.

The new experimental work was described in a paper prepared for the third national cancer conference by Dr. John B. Graham and his wife, Ruth Graham, a cytologist, or expert on cells. Both are from the Vincent Memorial Hospital in Boston.

Mrs. Graham has found an apparent reason for the tragic difference often noted in how well

Four Victoria residents each won $1,341 consolation prizes on horses which ran out of the money. One of them, Mrs. O. Cave, 2347 McBride, had a ticket on fourth-place Hornbeam. Had her horse made third place, she would have got $28,000.

The other $1,341 winners were: Mrs. A. H. Hamilton, 1150 Woodstock; G. H. Norrie, Irish Linen Shop, and George Levkulich, 1471 Hamilton.

$4.6 Billion Federal Estimates Establish Peacetime Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Supplementary estimates tabled Tuesday in the Commons boosted proposed federal spending for the 1956-57 fiscal year to $4,674,125,513, highest in peacetime.

The total represents an increase of $173,612,513 over estimated spending for 1955-56. The previous peacetime high was $4,567,794,000 in 1954-55 and the all-time record was $5,322,000,000 in the war year of 1943-44.

The supplementary estimates tabled by Finance Minister Harris totalled $146,025,513 and came on top of original estimates of $4,528,100,000 announced Jan. 26. It is likely further supplementary estimates will be proposed near the close of the 1956-57 fiscal year next March 31.

The government does not include old age pensions in its estimates of budget expenditures. The pensions, financed by special taxes and paid from a special fund, will be approximately $379,515,000 in the current year. If counted in, they would boost the estimates to a total $5,053,640,513.

The new supplementary estimates do not affect Mr. Harris' estimated budget surplus of $113,000,000 for the current fiscal year started last April 1. This estimated surplus compares with a deficit of $51,700,000 for the 1955-56 fiscal year.

The finance minister estimated in the budget actual spending of $4,650,000,000 for the current year. Biggest supplementary item is $30,000,000 to meet the 1955-56 deficit in the old age pension fund.

Last year's amount for this purpose was $63,300,000.

Another major item provides $30,000,000 to cover part of the pay increases recently received by civil servants and armed forces and RCMP personnel.

A grant of $12,000,000 is proposed for the publicly-owned CBC to cover an anticipated 1956-57 deficit on television service.

A loan of $3,500,000 is proposed for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. It would restore a special account used in 1955-56 for land development projects in co-operation with the provinces.

Other spending items forecast: Payments to members of the Commons and Senate for travel-
